

DIGIMON CITY

RAISING RENT

All tenants are hereby notified of a 20% rent increase to cover rising costs and damages incurred from meteors. If that sounds excessive and unreasonable, place the blame on that know-nothing, big-headed Vademon along with his chubby-cheeked abettor, Zero... or Blank or whatever the hell his name is.

If it were up to me, this charge would be effective immediately, but I was informed by my so-called lawyers that I legally have to give at least 30 days before it's reflected on next month's statement. Absolute baloney. Do you know how much money I stand to lose because of this useless law? DO YOU EVEN KNOW HOW MUCH IT COSTS TO RUN A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS EMPIRE LIKE MINE!? Anyway, it's not cheap, is what I'm getting at. Regardless, this little venture is going to cost me a pretty penny, and unfortunately, I can't backdate the posted date of transaction to recoup my business losses. Believe me, I already tried, but even I'm not rich enough to avoid legal troubles.

Anyway, seeing as I own nearly all of the buildings in this city, you don't really have much of an option but to pay—and failure to pay will result in immediate eviction and business closures.

Don't contact me.

Best regards,

Ganemon

RULES FOR PARTICIPATION

This is a great opportunity to show everyone how your tamer makes ends meet!

Draw/write/RP them working their tail off to pay rent and/or help keep the place they work for (or own) stay afloat!

Here are some ideas:

- Does your tamer take on a second job?
- Does your Digimon help and try to make money beside their tamer or doing their own thing?
- Make a workplace ad for television or the newspaper!
- Draw/write/RP another tamer/Digimon duo meeting yours on the job
- If your tamer is younger and has no job, maybe they are having a candy or friendship bracelet fundraiser for their school!
- Show us how your tamer/Digimon decompresses after a long day of work