President (Fill in the blank) March 1st, 2025

Dear Mr. President,

I am writing to you today to double-check if you are aware of the current state of affairs in the United States, the country you once led with distinction? I assume that you still prefer to be addressed as "Mr. President," a title that carries great respect and responsibility. Given this, I hope that your enduring sense of patriotism will motivate you to speak out against the actions of President Trump, which many believe undermine the accomplishments you achieved during your tenure.

The situation reminds me of pre-WWII Germany, where the rise of a dictator was facilitated by the inaction of influential former leaders. I urge you to break with tradition and publicly address the seriousness of the current state of affairs inflicted by the current administration. Criticizing President Trump's actions could provide a crucial voice of reason and leadership. As a former president, you are protected by the Secret Service, which should alleviate any concerns about personal safety. This is in contrast to many current GOP members of Congress, who may fear physical retribution from Trump's violent MAGA supporters.

I hope that reflecting on the state of America's democracy will inspire you to take a stand. If I do not hear public statements from you soon, I fear that I will have no choice but to interpret your inaction as tacit approval of President Trump's policies, and what a shameful mark on your legacy that will be.

"The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing". Now is not the time to stop being "presidential"! Please take that oft-quoted addage to heart. Today.

Respectfully yours,
