

I should have known better
I miss the safety you gave me when you held me
Now I feel like I need to run if you get close to me I miss the days of hanging out in my living room playing video games and talking you don't let me win anymore I remember you saying you would never be like the people but you became just like them I remember liking you liking the time we spent together not worried you would hurt me I should have known better than to trust my feelings
I should have remembered how the others ended
I miss the feeling you gave me
I don't get that feeling anymore
i should have known better

written by your resident mountain flamingo