GENERAL INFORMATION

Welcome Note from the Ambassador

Bula Vinaka and warm Pacific greetings

It gives me great pleasure to welcome all participants, presenters, and guests to the 2025 STEMtastic Adventures for Young Pacific Leaders, hosted at Fiji National University's Namaka Campus.

This symposium is not just a conference. It is a celebration of innovation, curiosity, and collaboration across our region. The theme "STEMtastic Adventures with Young Pacific Leaders" reflects our shared commitment to nurturing the next generation of Pacific thinkers, creators, and changemakers.

Throughout this gathering, you will engage in important conversations, showcase groundbreaking ideas, and explore how STEM can empower our communities and respect the depth of our cultural heritage. Whether your focus is on technology, education, sustainability, or entrepreneurship, your voice matters and your work contributes to a stronger, more secure Pacific.

I encourage you to make the most of this opportunity to connect, learn, and inspire. May your time in Fiji be filled with meaningful exchanges and lasting friendships.

Thank you for your commitment to shaping a better future for our region. Welcome once again, and I wish you a successful and rewarding experience.

Vinaka vakalevu.

Sincerely
Marie C. Damour
Ambassador of the United States to Fiji, Kiribati, Nauru, Tonga, and Tuvalu

Welcome from Other Event Co-hosts

Bula Vinaka!

On behalf of Fiji National University, University of South Pacific, and the mEducation Alliance, we welcome your participation in the first Pacific region STEM Education Symposium! We hope you find the event full of rich and fruitful discussions, knowledge-exchange, and creative space for new partnership formation. We anticipate approximately 100 attendees so a perfect size for getting to know each other through informal discussions, interactive sessions, enjoying delicious food, and simply having fun together.

History of the Fiji Islands

- Pre-Colonial Period:
  Fiji was first settled thousands of years ago by people who came by sea. They developed villages and chiefdoms, living off fishing, farming, and crafts. Society was organized around chiefs and clans with strong traditions and customs.

- Colonial Period:
  In 1874, Fiji became a British colony. The British set up sugar plantations and brought workers from India to help on the farms. This changed Fiji's population and created new social groups. The British also built schools, roads, and government systems, but tensions grew between the indigenous Fijians and the Indian workers.

- Independence and After:
  Fiji became independent from Britain on October 10, 1970. Since then, the country has faced political challenges, including several coups caused by conflicts between different ethnic groups. Despite this, Fiji grew its economy through tourism and farming and worked to build a peaceful, multiracial society.

- Today:
  Fiji now enjoys more political stability and democracy. It plays an important role in the Pacific region and focuses on development, protecting its environment, and keeping its culture alive.

Geography of Fiji

Fiji is an island country in the South Pacific Ocean, about 1,100 nautical miles northeast of New Zealand's North Island. It consists of over 330 islands, with around 110 inhabited, and more than 500 smaller islets. The two largest islands, Viti Levu and Vanua Levu, make up about 87% of the total land area. Fiji's terrain is mostly mountainous and volcanic, with lush forests, coral reefs, and white sandy beaches. The climate is tropical, with a warm, wet season from November to April and a cooler, dry season from May to October. Key towns include Nadi, Lautoka, and Labasa, while Suva, located on Viti Levu's southeast coast, is the capital and largest city. Fiji's location exposes it to tropical cyclones but also gives it rich marine biodiversity.

A Brief History of Fiji National University (FNU)

- This Symposia's host site, Namaka Campus of Fiji National University (FNU), was officially opened in October 2010 by the Prime Minister. It is strategically located near Nadi International Airport and major hotels on Viti Levu's western side to support Fiji's tourism and aviation industries. It offers a range of programs from the College of Business, Hospitality and Tourism Studies—including accounting, law, economics, finance, and management—as well as computing and aircraft engineering through the College of Engineering, Science and Technology. The campus features modern facilities such as lecture theatres, industry-standard kitchens, a training restaurant, computer labs, a seven-day library, and Fiji's only aircraft maintenance and engineering training school, making it a crucial hub for vocational and higher education in the region.

- FNU was officially established in 2010 through the merger of six government-owned tertiary institutions, each with a long-standing history of delivering specialized and vocational education across the country. These included the Fiji School of Medicine (founded in 1885), Fiji School of Nursing, Fiji College of Advanced Education, Fiji Institute of Technology, Lautoka Teachers College, and the Fiji College of Agriculture. The consolidation was part of a national strategy to unify and strengthen tertiary education, enhancing both accessibility and academic quality for Fijians and the broader Pacific region.

- Today, FNU operates multiple campuses across Fiji and offers a wide range of programs in medicine, education, agriculture, engineering, business, hospitality, maritime studies, and the arts. As the nation's flagship vocational and technical university, FNU plays a critical role in fostering practical skills, innovation, and research to support Fiji's socio-economic development. With a strong emphasis on industry collaboration, regional partnerships, and inclusive learning, FNU continues to position itself as a dynamic and responsive institution in the heart of the Pacific.

Travel Tips

- Recommended Arrival: 7–8 September
- Recommended Departure: 12 September

Booking Tips

- Sunday and Tuesday afternoons often offer the cheapest online fares.
- Use price alerts (Google Flights, Hopper, Skyscanner).
- Mid-week flights (Mon–Wed) are generally cheaper.
- Bundle flights and accommodation for savings (especially from North America).
- It is often cheaper to book directly through the Fiji Airways website or online platforms rather than through third-party agencies. Watch for exclusive web deals and promo codes offered on their site.

Before You Fly:

- Check visa requirements.

All visitors (visa-exempt or not) must hold a passport valid for at least 6 months, show proof of sufficient funds, and have a return or onward ticket

- Confirm baggage allowances.
- Book early if traveling in groups.
- Notify your school/organization early.

Arrival Planning:

- Arrive in Nadi on 7 or 8 September.
- FNU Namaka Campus (the site of the event) is 5 minutes from Nadi Airport.
- Local SIMs and currency exchange are available at the airport.

Hotel Booking Tips & Recommended Hotels

Here are useful hotel booking tips and a list of recommended hotels close to Nadi International Airport and Wailoaloa Beach, ideal for event attendees, group delegations, or youth programs such as STEMtastic Adventures.

Hotel Booking Tips & Advice:

- Book early (4–6 weeks ahead) for best availability and prices.
- Book near the event location to save on daily transfers: Namaka, Martintar, Wailoaloa, or Denarau.
- Check for event-related accommodations from FNU. *

- Use the hotel's own website (e.g. Fiji Airways Hotel Deals or direct bookings) for best prices.

- Compare prices on hotel's official site vs Expedia/Booking.com—sometimes hotel sites offer loyalty points, free breakfast, or flexible cancellations.

- For flexible plans, Booking.com usually has the best cancellation policies.

- Expedia bundles (flight + hotel) can save money if booking together, but watch out for strict cancellation rules.

- Check for airport shuttle service—many Nadi hotels provide this free or at low cost.
- Look for flexible cancellation policies, especially for group or youth travel.
- For group bookings (teams, delegations), contact hotels directly for discounts and block bookings.

- Check for inclusions like breakfast, air-conditioning, Wi-Fi, and late checkout.
- Use rewards platforms (Agoda, Booking.com, Expedia) if collecting points or cashback.
- Avoid booking too far from town or venue—try to stay within 10–20 minute radius.

OTHER TRAVEL TIPS

- September is the tail end of Fiji’s dry season (May to October), so expect warm, sunny days and cool evenings.

- Lightweight, breathable clothing is ideal—bring a light jacket or shawl for the evenings.
- Insect repellent is recommended, especially if participating in outdoor evening events.
- Stay hydrated! Bottled water is readily available, and tap water is generally safe in urban areas.
- The local currency is Fijian Dollar (FJD). Currency exchange is available at the airport and major hotels.
- SIM cards and mobile data are available at the airport for easy connectivity (Vodafone, Digicel).
- Fiji offers visa-free or visa-on-arrival access to many Pacific and Commonwealth countries—check before travel.
- A Bula shirt is a must-have and culturally respectful attire for events.

Basic etiquette in Fiji Islands

1. Say "Bula!"
   When you meet someone, say "Bula!" which means hello. It's a friendly way to greet people and shows you respect their culture.

2. Dress Properly
   In towns and tourist places, casual clothes are fine. But in villages or when visiting churches, wear clothes that cover your shoulders and knees. This shows respect.

3. Take Off Your Shoes
   Before you go inside someone's house or a church, take off your shoes. It's polite and part of their tradition.

4. Ask Before Taking Photos
   Don't take pictures of people, especially in villages or during ceremonies, without asking first. Some people don't like being photographed.

5. Respect the Kava Ceremony
   Kava is a traditional drink made from a root. If you join a kava ceremony, wait quietly for your turn, accept the cup with both hands, drink it in one go, and say "Bula" after. Follow what others do and be respectful.

6. Use Your Right Hand
   When giving or receiving things like gifts, money, or food, use your right hand or both hands. Using the left hand is seen as disrespectful.

7. Keep Affection Private
   Holding hands is okay, but avoid kissing or hugging in public, especially in villages. People in Fiji are more conservative about public affection.

8. Be Patient and Friendly
   Fijians are very warm and friendly. Take your time, smile, and don't rush. Being polite and kind will make your visit better.

9. Respect Elders and Chiefs
   Elders and chiefs have an important role in Fijian communities. Show them respect by listening and being polite when you meet them.

10. Don't Point or Use Your Feet
    Avoid pointing at people or things with your finger. Also, don't touch people's heads or point your feet at others—it's considered rude.

These simple rules will help you connect with people and enjoy Fiji's beautiful culture!

HEALTH & SAFETY

COVID-19 protocols from the Fijian Ministry of Health will be followed. Updates will be posted on the event site. First-aid and sanitization stations will be available at the venue.

- Fiji is generally a safe travel destination, but as with any location, basic health precautions are advised.
- Basic first aid support and hand sanitization stations will be available on-site throughout the symposium.
- An ambulance will be on standby at the venue for emergency medical response needs.
- A dedicated vehicle will also be on standby for any urgent medical or logistical needs during the event.
- It's advisable to carry any essential medications with you and declare them at customs if necessary.
- Use insect repellent, especially during evening hours, to avoid mosquito bites.
- Practice good hand hygiene—please use the available sanitizers before meals and after sessions.
- Please inform the organizers of any allergies or medical conditions during registration for emergency preparedness.
