

- Alterhuman (kin) term -

weAlterhuman (kin) term:

A kin umbrella term where someone identifies as anything non-human.

(Added a new definition because this one is wrong)

Alterhuman:

Adjective

Describes anyone who is beyond the typical human experiences or norms. Is not used to just refer to people with kintypes, but also an umbrella term designed specifically coined to include people with (though not limited to) hearttypes and linktypes as well as plurals.

Example: “The alterhuman community covers a diverse range of experiences.”

Nonhuman:

Adjective

Describes anyone who identifies as not human. This would include otherkin, therians, being fictionkin of things that are not human, and conceptkin.

Example: “A large portion of the alterhuman community is nonhuman.”

Kin:

The kintype of someone.

Kinfirmed:

confirming that you have a particular kintype.

Double/Kintwin:

Someone who shares the same kintype(s) as you

Kintype:

Noun

The being/concept/other that the alterhuman in question identifies as.

Example: “My first kintype was King George III.”

Kinsider:

Verb

Portmanteau of “kin” and “consider”. A kintype one is considering as having.

Kinsidering is the verb form of this Example: “Simba has been a kinsider of mine for a long time.”

Fictionkin:

Descriptor

Someone who identifies as a fictional character or species in an involuntary manner.

Example: “I am fictionkin.”

Note, people typically don't put an "a" before this term, similarly to how you use other descriptors.

Fictomere:

Noun

Any alterhuman identity based in fiction.

Example: "Fictionkin, fictionhearted, fictives, fictionlinkers, are all considered fictomeres."

Noun

Describes anyone with an alterhuman identity based in fiction. In this case, this is a synonym to fictionfolk.

Example: "All fictomeres can respond to this post."

Fictionfolk:

Noun

Describes anyone with an alterhuman identity based in fiction. In this case, this is a synonym to fictomere.

Example: "Tons of fictionfolk's experiences overlap."

Fictionflicker:

Noun

An alterhuman who identifies as a fictional character but only temporarily and loses their fictional identity over time. Usually, this is caused by hyperfixation and is considered a separate identity from fictionkin.

Example: "I think I'm actually a fictionflicker instead of fictionkin."

Factkin:

Descriptor

Someone who identifies as an existing/historical being in an involuntary manner. This can be people, animals, etc.

Example: "I am factkin."

Songkin:

Descriptor

Someone who identifies as a song in an involuntary manner. This includes lyrical songs, instrumental songs, songs from existing media, etc.

Example: "I am songkin."

Conceptkin:

Adjective

Describes someone who identifies as a concept involuntarily.

Example: "I'm conceptkin."

Kinshift/Shift:

Noun

When one's state of being aligns more closely with a certain (or multiple) kintype(s). This can be through their inner monologue, general demeanour, vocabulary, and more. Shifting describes the action of having a shift.

Archetrope:

Noun

An identity where someone heavily identifies with or as a mythological or fictional trope or archetype, typically being central and influential to one's alterhuman identity / identities. Archetroper is used to describe people with an archetrope.

Example: "My archetrope is a guardian angel since I strongly identify with tropes surrounding guardian angels in media."

Permashift:

Noun

When an alterhuman is constantly in the state of being shifted towards a certain identity.

Example: "I am experiencing a permashift."

Verb

The state of permashifted.

Example: "Rosa is permashifted."

Mental Shift:

Noun

When an alterhuman experiences a shift that changes their mental state and or personality to match a certain identity.

Example: "Mental shifts are common for fictionkin to have."

Verb

The act of experiencing a mental shift.

Example: "I am mental shifted to my werewolf kintype."

Phantom Shift:

Noun

A type of shift characterized by experiencing phantom supernumerary limbs such as wings or a tail.

Example: "Yesterday, I experienced a phantom shift; it was as if I actually had angel wings."

Verb

The act of experiencing a phantom shift.

Example: "I am currently phantom shifted."

im back, well half online :3

Yello!

Are we allowed to add terms on page 1? (E.g. Songkin for instance) - 🍌

Yes, it's allowed, It's also allowed to add a page if needed ! - 🍌

Do I include my emoji on the terms I add, just the ones I've created myself, or not at all?

Additionally, should I add credits to the creators of terms and stuff too?

Also, should I try adding everything from the fictionary?

<https://www.reddit.com/r/fictionkin/s/dDlbvBcpHg> - 🍌

if its term you had create you can put it in - your term - & you can put your emoji to sign !

also if you do want to add the fictionary you can ! we try to add all the term we know & new term for the one who doesn't fit in the term know :3 🤔
