Prior Understanding

[Note: This can include rumors, or understandings that may be untrue. This is simply prior knowledge, true or false.]

Vourned is a famous myth. His avatar is a person wearing a mask, and hat. His small description is "The Revival has begun." His About is, "You have experienced cosmic agony, my child. You have reached the point that very few have succumb. You are what many religious philosophers would recognize as PURE. Go on, cleanse false feeling and let whatever is left of the world grasp onto these agonies. You shall set the example for those who are misplaced, and hurt. Proceed to drink from the cup of torment and despair and share whatever is left." He is apart of the Saint Abida Tribe, and it a council member.

In-game notes | | I am walking around in a misty area with bridges connecting many pillars. I walked around for a very long time going on a same path over, and over again. Until I saw something in the distance, and it was a person. I couldn't see the person that well, and I had to get near. When I got on the ONLY Path to lead to it, the bridge was broken off. I decided to give up and fall of the edge to see my fate. To my surprise I was sent to another game I was put right in front of a bolder. I see a woman attached to this bolder, and she is bleeding. There is someone in the far distance. That is about all to this. Game.

In-game notes | | I am b I'm on a small Island in the sky once again. But this time there are trees next to me 4 to be exact. I am standing on some small hill as well as the sky is white. It seems to be raining. There are 3 ways to get to another island with all three having small plots of land in the sky. I fell of the edge to respawn. There are statues of this one man, and this one man has a scarf on which is similar to Vourned. On the island as well is a large stoned building. There is this religious symbol on the front wall of the building. I walk into the well lit building to find an obsidian object that looks like a portal. I walk through to nothing happen.
