

Once upon a time there were two siblings, Randy and Vagia. Randy was tall and slim with fair hair and bright blue eyes. Vagia was tall too, with long, curly, fair hair and beautiful tiny, blue eyes. The two children lived a life without adventure in a small village. One day the two children decided to leave their boring life and began an adventurous walk inside the dark forest. On their way to the forest they met a good witch. Her name was Sania. Sania offered to lead them to the forest from the shortest route.

Suddenly as they were walking, they found a rotten looking pumpkin. He was a talking pumpkin and his name was Jacko. They took Jacko along with them because he said that he would protect them and they continued their journey. The night was approaching and so they decided to find somewhere to sleep. They saw a small house and they knocked on the door. At first, nobody answered, so they knocked on the door again, then they heard a strange sound approaching them. Suddenly, an old man appeared.

They asked him if they could spend the night at that little house. The old man was surprised. He said that he hadn't talked with humans for two years. He told them that they must give the pumpkin to him if they wanted to sleep there. The children gave Jacko to him and so they slept there during the night. Next morning, they woke up and they saw a well-cooked breakfast. They ate it. When they had to leave, they wanted to thank the old man but he wasn't at home.

The old man was outside in the garden and he asked them where they were going. When the children told him their plans the old man said that he could help them. He suggested that they take a longer but more adventurous route to reach the forest than the route Sania suggested. Suddenly, Sania appeared from behind the bushes and she was very angry, she advised the children not to listen to him. She said that what he suggested was very dangerous. Unfortunately, Randy and Vagia preferred old man's suggestion.

Then Randy, Vagia and the old man continued on their way to the dark forest following the old man's route. Sania was very angry that the children discarded her suggestion and ignored her warning. Now, she had become a bad witch. So, she decided to punish them. She dropped a lightning bolt and a dangerously strong rainstorm started. In a short while, all the trees were uprooted and after that it started to rain poisonous snakes. This strange rainstorm forced them to stop their journey and this was only the beginning. The bad witch, Sania, decided to punish them even harder.

Vagia understood that if they hurt Sania's feelings her spell would break and the rainstorm would stop. So, they started saying bad things about her and Sania disappeared. They thought that she was done and that she wouldn't try to hurt them anymore but that wasn't true. They reached the foot of the mountain which was near the dark forest and suddenly King Owl appeared and introduced himself to the children. He asked them where they were going and after they told him he said that he would help them.

It was late at night, the kids had to sleep. They decided to spend the night at the foot of the mountain and continue their journey into the dark forest the next morning. King Owl left them during the night and flew to the dark forest to prepare the way and check for any dangers ahead.

The children and the old man woke up the next morning and looked to see King Owl but he wasn't there. They continued walking and suddenly Jacko appeared.

-Where have you been all day? the children asked him with surprise.

-You gave me to this old man so you could sleep at his house for the night and he put me in his garden where I spent the night out in the cold! Jacko answered.

-We had to give you to the old man because we were very tired and we wanted to sleep! We didn't see you in the morning and we had to continue on our journey. The old man then said that they didn't need him anymore, the dark forest was nearby, so he returned to his house.

The children continued on their way with Jacko. King Owl flew to them to warn them that Sania was approaching but it was too late! Suddenly, Sania appeared and she grabbed Jacko. Then, Sania disappeared again taking Jacko with her.

The children were very disappointed. They shouted: "Why did you take Jacko? We love Jacko. Give him to us!" Suddenly something appeared in the sky.

- Look! There is a flash of light in the sky! Randy said.

Sania appeared again.

-If you want Jacko you have to fight with me. Sania said.

-OK! said Randy.

Then Randy and Vagia approached Sania to fight. The fight was transported into the dark forest which had a castle in the middle. Vagia and Randy ran to the castle to protect themselves. The fight had started.

In the beginning Sania was stronger than the children. It was a fight between good and evil. Vagia saw a panel with buttons and pushed some of them. She managed to trap Sania in a secret room.

Randy and Vagia found the exit of the castle and went to find Jacko in the dark forest. Jacko was hiding in a tree. Finally, they found him glowing through a tree's branches. He was a Jack o' Lantern and when he was afraid he glowed with light.

-The adventure with Sania hasn't finished yet! Jacko said.

-O.K. but we'll need your help! answered Randy.

After a few days, Sania escaped through the walls of the castle and went to take her revenge. Randy and Vagia were on the beach with Jacko when they saw Sania and the battle began again.

Suddenly, the sky was painted red. The red colour was the sign of a powerful force of good magic. It was the magic force of all the Jack o' Lanterns. Jacko said that it would help them. "What are you talking about?" asked Sania. She was afraid and she didn't know what was going to happen. Then, little red and black monsters appeared from the sky and Sania ran deeper into the forest to hide from them.

They found her, they captured and imprisoned her in the big castle. Sania wanted to escape. At night, she managed to escape but in the morning, the little monsters went after her again.

They eventually found her, she was very tired now and had given up the fight. She was very sad and sorry and she wanted to apologise to the children. They took her back to the castle and there she met with Randy and Vagia.

Sania said "I was so bad and angry with you." "And now what?" said Vagia. "I'm sorry, I want to be friends" answered Sania. Vagia said that she didn't want to be friends after all that had happened. Then, Jacko slowly went near Sania and said "I want to be your friend". "I also want to be your friend!" said Randy. Then Vagia said that she would be her friend too and just like that, it was all over. Randy and Vagia were still sad. They had a big adventure but they missed their home now. They remembered their mother and father. They wanted to see them. So, Sania who had become a good witch again, cast a magic spell and transported them back home. They hugged and kissed their parents and promised never to leave home again.
