

Summary: Every saturday in December 2015 I asked my dad to teach to me how to drive a motorcycle.

Reflection: Now I can drive a motorcycle without supervision and cannot wait to get a driving license! This was a complete new experience for me because I have never driven any kind of machine but I had gained some confidence to do it because I knew how to ride a cycle. I am glad I learnt to drive it.

Learning outcome	Achieved	Evidence
Increased awareness of strengths and areas for growth
Undertaking new challenges	x	• I did learn how to ride a bicycle which made it easier to learn driving a motorcycle but I have never driven a motorcycle before
Planned and initiated activities	x	• I planned the schedule to learn with my dad to show him that I was committed to learn how to drive so that he wouldn't back out of it
Working collaboratively with others	x	• I had to work collaboratively with my dad to understand the proper workings of the bike such as the brakes, the accelerator and the indicators
Showing perseverance and commitment	x	• After learning on Saturday I would practice by myself whenever I could. Also did fall off the bike because of a wrong maneuver many times but continued to ride it
Engaged with issues of global importance

Consideration of ethical implications
Developing new skills	x	• I developed the skills of driving a transportation machine
