Happy holidays, beauties!

We know things have been quiet around here lately, but rest assured, we haven't gone anywhere! We've got lots more features baking for all of you~!

Thank you, Lifeline Lemons!

2025 has been quite a year for Fat Fleet, hasn't it? Two huge updates have bloated this project so much bigger than we ever expected. This game wasn't meant to be much more than its first release, but the love and support for our project just kept growing and swelling~!

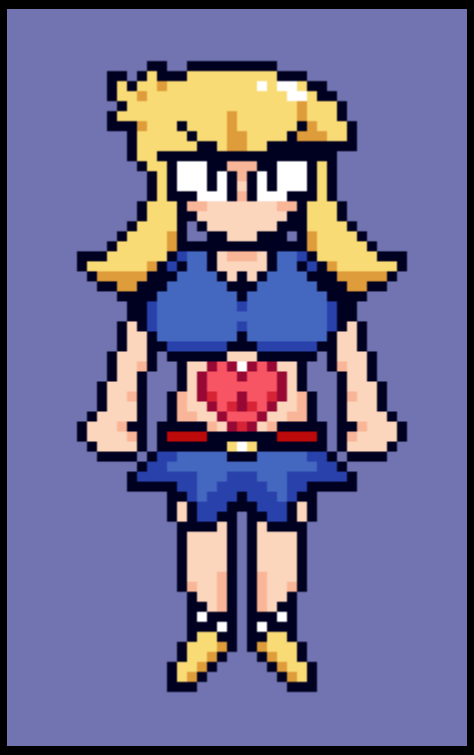

This project would not be what it is today without so many contributions from talented artists, voice actors, and more! And that includes every fan who gave this lovely game a shot. Especially the donations, which go directly to the people who make this game possible! We spend money very responsibly, we promise.

Anyway, what's next?

We have some playable characters planned for the future, all who grow in their own special ways~!

However, while we're excited to show everyone these new lovely faces, these characters are currently on hold. We're focusing all our attention on the reason the next update is taking so long...

What, you thought Arcade mode was the main course?

We're cooking up a real adventure for your favorite growing gals in a completely unique way to play! Why are these girls fighting sentient cakes, anyway? What do they want? What will become of the world if they fail...?

The next update will feature a public demo, granting our audience a taste of what's to come! Baking takes time, however. You'll just have to wait and see what we're making...

But if you're really so gluttonous, I suppose you could take a free sample~

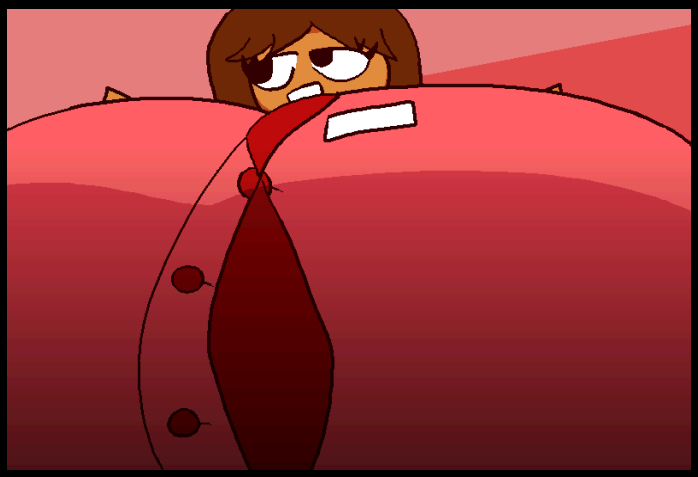

That being said...

We can't work on Fat Fleet forever, you know.

Fat Fleet was originally created as a gateway project. It was something simple enough for our team to get used to working with a new engine.

We definitely don't regret what's become of it, but we have so many more projects we're preparing in the background~

We hope you'll see these projects come to, but only when they're ready.

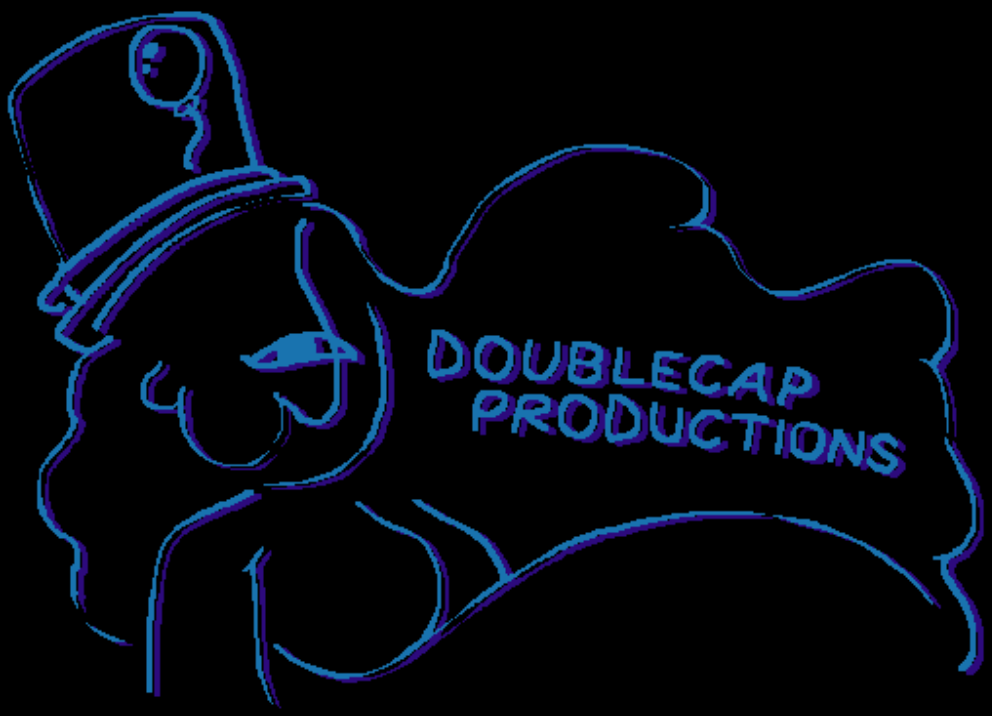

Don't forget to fight for our right to exist!

Projects as kinky as ours are being censored as we speak. Even if all you can muster is a few phone calls, that's already more than most. Do what you can, and don't hesitate to support small creators to get more of what you love~!

That being said, don't spoil your appetite! We've got so much sweetness to share with you, and we're all working hard to make it all happen.

Enjoy then, enjoy all the stuffings of the holidays, and we'll see you in 2026~!
