

Using the following website WRAS answer the following queries;

It is a legal requirement to give a water supplier advanced notification of the following: Tick all that apply

The erection of any new building or structure.
The extension or alteration of the water system in any premises except a domestic dwelling.(1) (2) (3)
The installation of:A reverse osmosis unit;
The installation of:A bath larger than 230 litres (measured to the centre of the overflow);
The installation of:A WC suite
The installation of:Any water system laid outside a building and either less than 750 mm or more than 1350 mm below ground level;
The installation of:A dishwasher
The installation of:A pump or booster drawing more than 12 litres per minute;
The installation of:A water treatment unit producing a waste water discharge or using water for regeneration or cleaning;
The installation of:A Washing machine

Note:

(1) In England and Wales, if an Approved Contractor, (such as a WIAPS, TAPS, Aplus, WaterMark or SNIPEF approved plumber) is used in these circumstances, the water supplier does not need advanced notification.

(2) In Northern Ireland, if an Approved Contractor, (such as a WIAPS, TAPS, Aplus, WaterMark or SNIPEF approved plumber) is used in these circumstances, the water supplier does not need advanced notification.

(3) In Scotland, if an Approved Contractor, (such as a WIAPS, TAPS, Aplus, WaterMark or SNIPEF approved plumber) is used in these circumstances, the water supplier does not need advanced notification.

How do you join WIAPS?

--