We'll go over the writing service under numerous areas in our EssayHave review, including About, Types of services, Quality, Prices and Payment, Guarantees, Customer Support, Pros, Cons, and Verdict.

Is Essayhave legit?

EssayHave.com Review EssayHave.com Review You can only get up to a 40% refund if you are not satisfied with your paper and the panel thinks your reasons are sufficient. No refunds for late deliveries. They somehow blame this on the customer instead of the writer. You also can not get a refund on any extra feature that you purchase.

EssayHave Review [Score: 8.9/10]

Though the website at first site looks modern and attractive, one has to dig a bit deep to know more about it. A cursory glance will show us that the site offers all the possible writing services. It also features a few customer reviews that are positive. No negative reviews can be found on the main website. However, team member information is not available and this may create some apprehensions in some people's minds. But on the whole, there are reasons to believe that EssayHave.com is a good option especially for those who are ready to pay the price for quality essay writing, researching, and other such assignments.

It comes with a starting price tag of $15 per page for high school. For undergraduate-level, the price is $17. Though the price may be a bit higher, this is the norm for all those sites that offer deliveries within 14 days. If students have texts they have to pay more. High school students can hope to get a page of essays completed for $37 in four hours. If one looks at the maximum price range, EssayHave seems to be a decent deal. Graduate writing facility can help students to have their one-page essays delivered to them within four hours for a price tag of $63. There are many other essay service providers who offer their services at higher rates. However, they still continue to be out of reach for many students. They have decent support through email, live chat, and also through telephonic calls. Live chat facilities are available only during working hours. The UTC timing from 8 am to 8 pm applies from Monday to Friday for the helpline services. Though they may not be available on chat support round the clock, on the whole, it is quite obvious that the support services provided by them are of the best quality.

The services offered by EssayHave

The service provider (EssayHave) offers a bouquet of services for university and high school students. They include assignments, book reviews, homework, and other such things that students look out for. In some rare cases, they also offer blog post writing services, business plans, discussion essays, personal reflections, critical thinking, poems, and finally journal articles. Initially, we may not believe that any good writing service company can offer so many different types of services. However, the service provider seems to have all the above capabilities though not all students may need each one of the services that they have on offer. Special skills and special human resources for difficult writing tasks go to prove that they are quite versatile and ready to offer what the customers may require at any given point in time. While offering special and difficult types of writing services, like the best online proofreading service, there are a few more reasons why EssayHave could be a good choice. They offer some attractive price discounts and offers. For example, new customers are not charged for the first page but for this to happen, they have to use the coupon code. Some students may initially be skeptical about this because they believe quality could be impacted. They may be under the impression that the free page may not always be written by experts. However, on a closer look at the discount offers many students and prospective customers believe that they do not compromise on quality. The first page that is given free to them is a good first-time offer.

Customer experience

There was a student who ordered a business plan. The plan was only a few pages long and hence the time limit was well within 14 days. The plan was delivered to the student on time and the idea was original. The business plan could be used as a template for many other businesses apart from the one that the student may have asked. Some bit of strengthening on the plans may be required by students who want to start something of their own. On the whole, the experience was good and the college gave the student good marks for the business plan. The quality of writing was good but a few students are of the opinion that things could have been better. There were rare instances of grammatical mistakes and these may not be acceptable in a corporate world. Revisions to the works are required once in a while and this is common with all such service providers and EssayHave.com is also no exception to this common practice. Some delays and time overruns have been reported. This again is quite within the normal limits. However, students may be better off taking 20 days as the outer limit instead of 14 days so that they are not found on the wrong side at the eleventh hour.

Proessaywriting.com EssayHave.com Review

EssayHave.com Review EssayHave.com Review There were none. I couldn't find any, they wouldn't give me any, they would not knock money off my order. I told them it was my first order, but they said their prices are set by their corporate office. I am not quite sure what they meant by it. Maybe their office was closed.

Money-Back Policy

EssayHave.com Review EssayHave.com Review The average price for a one-page paper that would be delivered in 14 days is $15. While the same paper but at a 4-hour deadline is $37. This is very much more expensive than most online writing services.
