

Hosting special guests and having real conversations between Adrienne and Angela, the Black Women in Europe® podcast will amplify the voices of the ordinary and extraordinary among us by exploring their lives, discussing relevant news, and tackling interesting and difficult topics including racism both subtle and overt; adapting to new customs, citizenship and residency challenges and requirements, hair care, mental health and more.

For the past 15 years, our blog readers have come from around the globe and today we're having adult conversations with, about, and for Black Women whose family goes back generations on the continent, are new arrivals, or seasoned expats. We wholeheartedly welcome our family from the Diaspora, our allies, and those seeking to be allies wherever you are.

By the end of each episode we will make new friends, celebrate successes, and try new things. Listeners will meet interesting people and hopefully won't make the same assumptions about black women in Europe ever again. Oh, and we'll have fun along the way.

We're also interested in hearing from you! If you have a podcast or blog get in touch! We'd love to join your conversation too. Reach us at podcast@blackwomenineurope.com

xx Adrienne and Angela