

Thousands Turn Out In Support of Governor Mike Grant!

The Governor swarmed by adoring supporters at an event in Brigham City, Utah.

Today, Governor Michael D. Grant held a rally in Brigham City UT in the wake of controversies regarding his interactions with the renegade Lieutenant Governor William Melp. Thousands turned out in support of the Governor, and he gave a speech to the crowd:

GRANT: Hello Brigham City!!

CROWD: cheers and applauds as the Governor takes his place at the podium

GRANT: It's so good to be here today in the beautiful Brigham City to see so many smiling faces looking back at me, especially after the number of angry ones I've seen over the past few weeks! Yeah, I've seen a lot of opposition but the fact is that we will not let that stop us! In March, the people voted for change in Fremont and I will deliver!

CROWD: cheers

GRANT: That's right! Everything I've done, I promised to do in my manifesto. The people voted for that and so anyone who is opposing the change we are delivering is directly opposing the will of the people of Fremont! There's a lot of folks out there, like Melp and like Cypress Zairn and like so many others, and they say that I'm in the wrong and that the people say I'm in the wrong. But so many of y'all being here today proves that I'm not wrong! In fact, let's get one of y'all up on stage. You, here, (gestures to a man in the crowd) in the hat, hop up here on stage and have a talk with me.

*(The Governor helps the man up on stage and shakes his hand)*

GRANT: What's your name, sir?

MAN: I'm Percy, sir, Percy Walker.

GRANT: Well, Percy, you've come out here tonight like everyone else in this crowd to show your support. So can you tell everyone what it is that made you come out here tonight?

PERCY: Well, Governor, it's simply the fact that you're the best governor we've had in a long, long time. We've been under the Democrats for far too long and all they wanted was to slow us down. But you've boosted us ahead into the future!

CROWD: cheers

GRANT: Thank you, Percy, I appreciate that. And, the particular controversy right now. My squabbles with Mr. Melp over the state seal alteration and several other issues. What are your—

PERCY: Well, I support the state seal alteration. While the Spanish were the first to find this land, Mexico lost it to the United States in the Mexican-American War which, may I remind people, was started by Mexican aggression towards Texans. There is no reason for the Burgundy Cross, which represents the time before the acquisition, to remain on our state seal. And like you said yourself, sir, there was a great deal of genocide committed by the Spanish Empire during it's time and I don't think even modern Mexico wants to associate themselves with that symbol. So why should we?

GRANT: And your thoughts on Mr. Melp?

PERCY: I liked Melp when I voted. He seems like a good man and a solid American, but he has lost his way a little bit. I prefer to see a party that's united not divided, and so I really hope to see Melp coming back together with yourself and hopefully we see you two as friends again by the next election.

GRANT: I hope so too. Thanks for coming up, a round of applause for Mr. Walker, everybody!

CROWD; applauds as Percy Walker steps down off the stage and rejoins his family. His children are visibly excited about their father speaking at the rally

GRANT: So there it is from the word of the citizens, people. I have not done anything during my time which I did not promise to do in my manifesto. The people of Fremont voted for those changes and the people continue to support them today. Even Lt. Governor Melp supports a few of the changes I have made and, although we're in a rough patch right now, he and I, I'm sure he will realize the benefits of my policies and we can start working together again.

But this small group of people continue to oppose change, despite the people asking for it. They oppose climate action!

CROWD: booes loudly

GRANT: They oppose the defense of the Second Amendment!

CROWD: booes even louder, one man delivers a high-pitched scream, earning a brief chuckle from the Governor

GRANT: And they oppose the removal of genocidal and monarchist symbols from our state seal!

CROWD: booes a final time

GRANT: But this group is a small one. They're loud and they're good at making themselves look big. But we are the silent majority and we're done being silent! The people want change and I swear to you, on all that I hold dear, that I shall deliver change! You ask, I deliver!

CROWD: cheers

GRANT: That's right! As your Governor, I will do what the Democrats refused to do for so long. I will fulfill the policies of my manifesto, no more and no damn less! I am Michael D. Grant, ladies and gentlemen, thank you and goodnight!

The Governor walks off stage to the tune of Yankee Doodle Dandy, dancing as he does. The crowd cheers and one man throws a GRANT FOR GOVERNOR banner on the stage.

At the end of the stage, his wife and daughter await him. He embraces his wife and his daughter jumps on his shoulders as the family walk off stage.
