Model Answer

Over the last few decades, it is an irrefutable point that the environment is exposed to many dangers. These dangers are tremendously progressed due to advanced processes which caused myriad issues. In this essay, I will discuss the causes that are harming the environment and I will determine who should struggle against them.

To begin with, there are many behaviors and reasons in the environment which cause inevitable consequences such as pollution. First and foremost, the factories which are producing black smoke are the very effective reason, they make no efforts to minimize the pollution. In addition, the vital and common issue is greenhouse emissions. Moreover, there are not enough studies in this field. Hence, people still don't have the awareness to protect the environment. At last but not least, the garbage is being burned commonly causing serious consequences.

Further reinforcing, many sides share the responsibility with different percentages. Firstly, the governments are the first responsible party since they have the ability to stop these behaviors legally. Also, the individuals who share in climate change causes. For instance, the owners of greenhouses. Furthermore, the scientists and researchers, because they have not used their skills to enrich this vital issue with solutions.

Thus, In conclusion, we can say that it is our responsibility to protect our environment and to save our mother earth from being deteriorated.

Model Answer 2

There is no denying that our mother earth is in danger and this is something that each one of us knows. The occurrence of natural calamities like Tsunami has increased multifold in the past decade inviting experts' views to outline the underlying causes of this problem and what can be done to combat this.

{Causes}

The foremost reason that poses the serious threat to our environment is the harmful gases present in the air. In the past decade, the uncontrolled use of automobiles has increased multifold which in turn emits harmful gases like Carbon monoxide. The electronic appliances of our daily use like air conditioners and refrigerators also contaminate air by the discharge of harmful substances. The diverse effects of these gases lead to air pollution and global warming.

Deforestation is another major cause. The human population is increasing at a fast rate and to meet their daily consumption forests and trees are being cut down. Be it for home or fuel, the man is causing great loss to the environment. Other known causes are the depletion of natural resources like water, fuel, and food. The over-consumption of resources by humans and improper waste disposal have resulted in increasing volumes of solid and hazardous wastes that pose major threats to the environment.

{Solutions}

It is mainly due to human activities that the planet has reached unsustainable levels and now it is our duty and responsibility to lower the loss that has been already done to nature. Every individual could play a significant role to combat this problem.

We use an enormous amount of plastic in our daily life so let's say 'No' to plastics. Instead of plastic, we can make use of Eco-friendly substitutes that are readily available everywhere. For example: Use paper and cloth bags for shopping.

The government of every country should implement strict laws for industries that inhibit the release of toxic wastes and proper waste management. The awareness programs should be organized to encourage citizens to use more public transport and plant trees in their neighborhood. The less use of private vehicles will substantially reduce the emission of fossil fuels thereby playing a vital role in addressing this issue.

{Conclusion}

At the end, I can say that it is the responsibility of each one of us to do our bit for the environment. Let's work together towards a greener and more sustainable future.
