

Admissions Practices Resources Page

Public Resources | Member Resources

Public Resources

NACAC's Guide to Ethical Practice in College Admission

The Admissions Practices (AP) Committee is responsible for proactively educating International ACAC members and the larger community about NACAC's Guide to Ethical Practice in College Admission and International ACAC Board Policies.

To read the guide in Spanish, please click here.

To read the guide in Mandarin, please click here.

NACAC Guide to International Admission (NACAC membership required to access the document)

International NCAA Eligibility

International ACAC Member Resources and Training

Members of International ACAC have access to a wide array of resources. Please find a curated list of webinars, and conference sessions related to ethics within college admissions and counseling. Content is free for all members. Join Today

International ACAC Counselor & University Support Database

Several countries and regions have established specific websites or Facebook pages to connect with others in that particular area or to provide Admissions Officers with resources to plan travel and recruitment. International ACAC members are welcome to access these resources and provide International ACAC with updated links to be posted on this webpage. Note that International ACAC is not responsible for the content or management of these websites. We are simply providing this information as a resource to our members.

Webinars

April 6, 2022

Living Your Values: Staying Ethical in University Admissions and College Counseling

The world as we knew it has forever changed and so has admissions and counseling work.

Amid a global pandemic, mental health crises, a worldwide reckoning on systemic racism, fluctuating economies, and increased selectivity in admissions, how do we continue to center our work in ethical practice in 2022 when we are under so much pressure? Join International ACAC and NACAC representatives to unpack the Guide to Ethical Practice in College Admission, to engage in discussions regarding ethical dilemmas, and to highlight best ways to support students from all sides of the desk.

February 6, 2019

Codified Ethics: Navigating the New Roadmap of Ethics in International Admissions & Counseling

NACAC's new Code of Ethics of Professional Practices (CEPP) will now serve as a more modern and streamlined set of guidelines for our profession. Whether you work independently, in a high school or in admissions, this session is for you. Case studies will be utilized to explore the CEPP in action. Opportunities to hear practitioner speak to the trends in the field will add depth and perspective to the various forms ethical practices can take and the best practices in which we can deal with them. As with all Webinar Wednesdays, there will be plenty of time for questions and lively discussion with the panelists.

January 10, 2018

Codified Ethics - Navigating the New Roadmap of Ethics in International Admissions & Counseling

At the NACAC Annual Conference in Boston in September, the 2017 Assembly approved major changes to the Statement of Principles and Good Practices (SPGP) including its name.

NACAC's new Code of Ethics of Professional Practices (CEPP) will now serve as a more modern and streamlined set of guidelines for our profession. Whether you work independently, in a high school or in admissions, this webinar is for you. In this webinar, there are case studies to help members see the CEPP in action, and an opportunity to hear practitioner perspectives about trends in the field.

Conference Sessions

July 2022

Friend or Fraud: Lessons and Tips for Safeguarding Your Document Review Process for International Applicants Presentation

Digitization enables colleges and universities to automate the routing of application materials and make faster admissions decisions. This proactive session uses case studies from the University of Maine, Whitworth University, IELTS, and WES to assess how those involved in the admissions process can better identify fraudulent documents and apply proper due diligence to mitigate the global impact of credential fraud in today's digital landscape.

UNDER PRESSURE: PRIORITIZING ETHICS IN A CRAZY WORLD

The world as we knew it has forever changed and so has admissions and counseling work. Amid a global pandemic, mental health crises, a worldwide reckoning on systemic racism, fluctuating economies, and increased selectivity in admissions, how do we continue to center our work in ethical practice in 2022 when we are under so much pressure? Join International ACAC and NACAC representatives to unpack the Guide to Ethical Practice in College Admission, to engage in discussions regarding ethical dilemmas, and to highlight best ways to support students from all sides of the desk.

July 2021

Doing the Right Thing in a Changing Landscape

What does ethical practice look like when there is no mandatory code? Join International ACAC and NACAC representatives to unpack the new Guide to Ethical Practice in College Admission, to engage in discussions regarding ethical dilemmas, and to highlight best ways to support students.

The New Kid on the Block! Navigating College Counseling Resources in an Era of Rapid Change

Everyone is “new” at some point, and often more than once! This session will focus on strategies and resources for individuals new to the profession. A panel whose members have over 70 years of collective experiences in varied settings (admissions, university counseling, and government-sponsored programs) will discuss the importance of cultural consideration, networking, resources, and other important factors to help you as you navigate your new career.

July 2018

Ethical Dilemmas 2017-2018 Cases to Ponder

Is there a right answer? Tired of saying, 'it depends'? What's legally mandated, morally correct or ethically supportable? This session will consider cases from the 2017/2018 reading/applying application cycle. We'll ponder, discuss and debate together to discover what the best approach to these dilemmas might have been.

CEPP: A New Road Map for Navigating the Winding, Bumpy, and Often Still Being Built Road of Ethics in International Admissions & Counseling

At the NACAC Annual Conference in Boston in September, the 2017 Assembly approved major changes to the Statement of Principles and Good Practices (SPGP) including its name.

NACAC's new Code of Ethics of Professional Practices (CEPP) will now serve as a more modern and streamlined set of guidelines for our profession. Whether you work independently, in a high school or in admissions, this session is for you. Join us for interactive case studies to help members see the CEPP in action and an opportunity to share practitioner perspectives about trends in the field. And, as a living and evolving document, this session will serve as an opportunity to share feedback on areas where the CEPP could further support professionals working with international students.

