Personality

- Badger is a bit of a loner, finding comfort in his own company rather than in others. He'll always tell the truth and is emotionally quite tough, not letting others' words get to him. He has a silly side that comes out when he's nervous and often will avoid fighting as he believes he's too weak to be of any help. He's willing to try new things and wants to better himself.
Positive Traits: Honest, Resilient
Neutral Traits: Adaptable, Reserved
Negative Traits: Cowardly, Nervous

History

Early life

- Badger has had a rough life since the day he was born, seemingly cursed with being simply unlucky. Being the smallest kit of his litter, he was teased by the rest of his siblings, leaving him feeling picked on through much of his young kithood. But that's just where it all started and also where he got lucky. One day his siblings pulled a prank on him and he got lost in the forest. Both of his parents were rogues and often left the kits unattended to provide for them. Upon finding his way back to the hollow tree his family lived in, he found his whole family had been killed by a pack of wolves, leaving him completely alone, the sole survivor of his family.

(CW: Mass Bullying)

After the wolf incident Badger decided to leave the forest, knowing especially now he wouldn't be safe. For the first couple of months, having found his way to a small town, he scavenged scraps off the streets. The bullying continued in this town, as it seemed everyone he met heavily disliked him. Most days he spent hiding from the dogs and humans that seemingly patrolled the streets. He lost much weight in the small town, learned many lessons about others and eventually decided to move on, back into the wilds in hopes of a brighter future.

(CW: Mass Bullying End)

Summary: Badger leaves the forest and lives in a small town, but ends up leaving that too after being poorly treated

Adulthood

- Badger spent a lot of time on his own, avoiding others as they had proved time and time again that they were more harm than help. He stayed away from the mountains, feeling fear every time he got too close to the place he used to call home. This led him to linger in the meadow colony's territory, eventually being found by one of their 'Bumblebees.' After hearing more about the colony and their morals, he decided he'd give colony life a shot. He quickly takes on the commoner role though still often staying on the outskirts, watching and waiting for the bullying to begin despite the 'values' these cats claimed to have. (Will update more after acceptance as to stay cannon.)
