What Are Bail Bonds and How Do They Work in Lakewood?

Bail bonds are financial arrangements that help secure a defendant's release from jail while awaiting trial. In Lakewood, when someone is arrested, a judge typically sets a bail amount based on various factors including the severity of the alleged crime, flight risk, and prior criminal history.

For many families, posting the full bail amount can be financially impossible. This is where bail bonds services in Lakewood become essential. A bail bondsman provides a surety bond to the court, typically requiring only 10-15% of the total bail amount from the defendant or their family.
