This section must clearly describe why the topic is important and its contribution to the development of science. Provide sufficient background information on the research project, including the reasons why you are interested in conducting the study and why you chose this topic. Include a general definition and discussion of the topic, followed by a review of relevant literature from reputable journals or other scholarly references. Summarize the findings of previous related studies, highlight the gaps that remain in the literature, and explain how your study is different, thereby emphasizing the novelty of your research.

The introduction should then present the research problems or research questions that guide your study, along with the main objectives. For non-research articles, this section should instead contain the background, thesis statement, urgency of the topic, and a brief overview of the literature and its implications. Finally, the introduction may briefly mention the expected contributions or main conclusions of the work.

METHODS (Open Sans, Font Size 12 pt, spacing before 12, after 0)

This section uses the 11 pt Open Sans font, 1.15 line-spacing; don't add space before and/or after paragraph. This section describes how the research was conducted. The primary materials of this section are (1) research design; (2) population and sample (target of research); (3) data collection techniques and instrument development; (4) and data analysis techniques. For research using tools and materials, it is necessary to write down the specifications of the tools and materials. The tool specifications describe the sophistication of the tools used, while the material specifications describe the types of materials used. Qualitative research such as classroom action research, ethnography, phenomenology, case studies, and others, it is necessary to add the presence of researchers, research subjects, informants who helped during the research and ways to explore research data, location and duration of research as well as descriptions of checking the validity of research results.

RESULT (Open Sans, Font Size 12 pt, spacing before 12, after 0)

This section uses the 11 pt Open Sans font, 1.15 line-spacing; don't add space before and/or after paragraph. This section may be divided into subheadings. It should provide a concise and precise description of the experimental results, their interpretation, and the experimental conclusions that can be drawn.

DISCUSSION (Open Sans, Font Size 12 pt, spacing before 12, after 0)

Authors should discuss the results and how they can be interpreted from the perspective of previous studies and the working hypotheses. The findings and their implications should be discussed in the broadest context possible. Future research directions may also be highlighted.

CONCLUSION (Open Sans, Font Size 12 pt, spacing before 12, after 0)

The conclusion should summarise the main state of play at the point of writing and consider the next steps. Summarise and conclude, restating the main argument and presenting key conclusions and recommendations—state how your findings/new framework can be applied in practice. Explain what the implications are for further research.

DECLARATIONS (Open Sans, Font Size 12 pt, spacing before 12, after 0)

Author contribution statement

Specifies the exact contributions of each author in a narrative form. Add a statement on the use of artificial intelligence (AI) if it was used in the research.

Funding statement

The funding agency should be written out in full and include the grant number, which can be included in brackets. The funding agency needs to be listing in the "Organization Name." If there is only one funding agency: This research was supported by the Organization Name [grant number xxxxxx]. If there are multiple agencies or grant numbers, then it should be formatted as such: This research was supported by the Organization Name [grant numbers xxxxxx]; the Organization Name [grant number xxxxxx]; and the Organization Name [grant number xxxxxx]. If there is no funding information, they should state: This research received no specific grant from any funding agency in the public, commercial, or not-for-profit sectors.
