John J. DeGioia
Office of the President
204 Healy Hall
3700 O ST NW
Washington, DC 20057-1789

Dear President DeGioia, Provost Groves, and Associate Vice President Bianco,

As the Georgetown Class of 2024, we would first like to express our excitement in being welcomed into the Hoya family. Our newfound home within the Georgetown community has given us hope during these trying times. We would also like to convey our gratitude for the efforts of the administration in introducing us to the Georgetown community through offering online experiences with professors, students, and administrators that provide a window into our future on the Hilltop.

As a result of the disruptions caused by the COVID-19 public health crisis, we are deeply concerned that a fall online semester will impose additional barriers that disproportionately affect vulnerable student groups, included but not limited to low-income students, first-generation students, immunocompromised students, international students, those in need of academic support, those lacking sufficient access to technology, those in different time zones, and those who find themselves in toxic households. We fear that continuing online instruction would exacerbate inequalities within our Georgetown community, which may give rise to long-lasting academic repercussions and contribute to an unjust learning environment. A stable internet connection and a private learning space are imperative to successfully implementing online learning, and numerous students may not have access to either.

In contrast, on-campus resources at Georgetown help level the playing field, giving the disadvantaged members of our community a more equitable educational experience, while a virtual learning environment would not nearly provide to the same extent. Having experienced virtual learning firsthand during the second semester of our own senior year, we noticed that the mental health of many of our classmates and some of our own have also been negatively affected by this stressful situation.

Due to the unprecedented nature of the COVID-19 pandemic, in a situation whereby the University cannot physically reopen and virtual learning continues, we ask that you consider the following requests:

1. Students with certain circumstances should be provided with an option to take a gap year via an appeals process:
  - a. A gap year request extension should be available to students including but not limited to those who come from low-socioeconomic backgrounds, are international students,

It should be understood that the needs of our Hilltop community evolve just as the pandemic and Georgetown's administrative responses do. This requires that this document be "living," meaning it can and will feature more action items as we consolidate the broader concerns of our community. Rather than adding unrelated new demands to this letter, we will expand upon already established goals and react appropriately to the bevy of new information generated in response to the outbreak.

students with disabilities, undocumented students, immunocompromised students, and first-generation students.

- b. The request deadline should be extended until after students are notified with the course of action Georgetown will be taking this fall.
2. To suggest the commencement of the fall 2020 semester be postponed within the window of the fall months:
  - a. Following the appropriate health care guidelines to transition back into an on-campus community with the purpose of:
    - i. Providing an optimal educational environment for students of all socioeconomic backgrounds.
    - ii. For the reason that some classes, especially those with laboratory components, are fundamentally irreplicable in an online setting.
    - iii. Allowing the student body to benefit from resources and opportunities including but not limited to internships, community service, employment, activism, etc. that the District of Columbia has to offer.
  - b. Maintaining that the quality and rigor of the Georgetown curriculum would fit into the altered semester.
  - c. Incentivizing the faculty, staff, and student body to uphold the engagement and intellectual drive for which the community is known.
3. On-campus housing at the university should be guaranteed for vulnerable student groups:
  - a. These groups include but are not limited to low-income students, first-generation students, students in unstable or toxic households, and international students who are in different time zones or may face difficulties with immigration status.
  - b. On-campus housing will provide a safe haven and equal access to online classes, which allows the aforementioned students to have an equal chance of receiving a Georgetown education and experiencing what it means to truly be a Hoya.
4. Ensuring that faculty and staff continue to be paid, especially adjunct and non-tenured faculty:
  - a. We, the Class of 2024, stand in solidarity with the faculty and staff who enrich the Georgetown community as educators, mentors, and leaders and believe that their well-being must be kept in mind as well when deciding the course of action for this fall.

Why Georgetown

What drew us to Georgetown was its unwavering commitment to intellectual inquiry and debate through discussion-based classes. Some of Georgetown's most unique courses, such as Problem of God, the SFS Proseminars, NHS colloquiums, and the COL Ignatius Seminars are centered on deep interpersonal

*It should be understood that the needs of our Hilltop community evolve just as the pandemic and Georgetown's administrative responses do. dialogue, and are veritable rites of passage for first-year students. These profound discussions are difficult to replicate in an online setting where students do not feel the same personal connection to their peers and professors as they otherwise would in the classroom. Furthermore, interpersonal relationships play an integral role in the learning process; these discussions allow us to learn from each other. Georgetown's academic excellence stems largely from irreplaceable life-changing experiences that are unsurpassed elsewhere.

Moreover, an important part of the transition to college life is living on campus and learning from fellow Hoyas. In an online setting, students cannot experience the invaluable studying and socializing that happens in dorms, dining halls, and clubs. These experiences help us adjust to academic life and support in our development as persons, enriching our character and maturing our worldview in the true spirit of cura personalis. Being denied these experiences, which are crucial to a healthy transition to college life, would hamper our ability to engage in rigorous online coursework in a distance learning environment.

We, as the incoming Class of 2024, can only speak for ourselves and our specific situation as it pertains to the COVID-19 pandemic. We as young people barely into adulthood are combating rising feelings of stress, anxiety, and panic in the face of a collapsing global economy, an ever-worsening public health crisis, and the overall uncertainty of our futures. Our last semester as high school students should have been a celebration of our academic achievements and the personal growth that we worked toward for four years. Instead, we too have experienced friends contracting COVID-19, family members becoming unemployed, and our teachers struggling to maintain a normal class environment amidst unprecedented events.

In expressing our sentiments in this open letter, we do not aim to disregard the personal situations of others. We recognize the impact in which a postponement may have on marginalized members of the Georgetown community. Even though we have not set foot on the Georgetown University campus, we want to be active participants of the Hilltop family that we are about to join, and hope our proposals will represent the Class of 2024 in discussions regarding the Fall 2020 semester.

As we hope to arrive on campus in the fall amidst these uncertain times, we would like to once again express our gratitude for the warm welcome that we have received since becoming Hoyas. While we recognize that Georgetown must comply with any public health measures implemented in the future, we strongly hope that you consider our aforementioned proposals. If it is necessary to continue online learning next year, we hope that the university will conduct open dialogue with the student body to ensure a smooth transition, especially for the Class of 2024. Regardless of what the future holds, we believe that the Georgetown University administration has our best interests at heart, and we look forward to truly becoming a part of the Hoya community.

Respectfully,

The Concerned Students of the Georgetown University Class of 2024
