

what do i want to be in life?

my life has revolved that i am not like everyone else why is that?

all of my life i have been picked for being not like everyone else. people dont feel my vision they think i am lost and stress to much. i cant listen to them anymore.

now i am following a path that is considered weird my friends and family dont understand me. but one person do my hero, my dad.

me and my dad are alike and that i am blessed for.

my biggest desire is to be free and at peace i dont care about now. I strive every day for a better life than anyone i know.

i know im gonna be free i believe in god more and more for every day and i know i do the right thing for myself and my ancestors.