

Hey Team,

VIDEO UPDATE HERE!

Thanks again for the steady effort you bring each week — the little details you take care of really add up to a studio that feels fresh, organized, and welcoming. A few quick notes for this week:

Shower Mat Towels

We keep having wet shower mat towels left out overnight.

Please swap the mat towels at the end of night after showers are complete, and follow the last-load dryer-delay instructions I included in the last update.

Going forward, I'll be reaching out individually with reminders. I appreciate your understanding.

Windows & Mirrors

Please be mindful when cleaning mirrors and windows:

- Use the correct microfiber cloths (the ones set aside for glass).
- After wiping, take a moment to dry the surface thoroughly — this helps prevent streaks and fogging, especially in the hot room.
- There is also a squeegee in the laundry room you can use to ensure the mirrors look beautiful.

Laundry Cycles

I've disabled the end-of-cycle chimes on the washer and dryer to keep the studio quiet during quiet classes. This means you'll need to:

- Set a timer on your phone, or
- Keep the studio phone nearby as a reminder.

This way, cycles don't sit finished for too long and laundry keeps moving smoothly.

If we find that end-of-cycle turnovers are being missed, we will revisit this choice and turn the signal back on!

BAMBOO MAT Update

We're currently down a long bamboo mat in the men's changeroom. It broke.

We're looking at replacement options, but in the meantime, please be careful with the remaining mats - they do not deal with abuse well.

Appreciate the attention you bring to these details — they really make a difference. Let me know if you run into any issues on your shifts.

Take care, and thank you,
Zak