Editor's Note: The Polytechnic's website is hosted on currently down RPI servers leading to this distribution. Once the servers have been restored, this article will be posted in our usual manner.

An announcement was posted this afternoon to all of Rensselaer's social media stating that "all final exams and submissions (e.g., term papers, project reports) scheduled or due for Monday (May 10) and Tuesday (May 11) are cancelled" as a result of the cyberattack on RPI servers that occurred on Friday.

Modifications to grading policies for subjects with finals on these dates, as well as finals that were disrupted on Friday, are yet to be communicated. Information regarding final exams on Wednesday has yet to be released.

Update: As per the announcement made May 5, final exams and submissions due Wednesday are also canceled.
