

Feathers
By Dudley Stone

The long-haired Himalayan leaves a gift at my door with a note: "You can eat all this but the feathers. The meat may go right through you, but swallowing its scream will make you young again.

If you don't know that by now,
I can't teach you anything."