

This is Nevins Taylor Hufford, a student at Environmental Charter High School and a Remake Learning Days Youth Ambassador. I recently attended the Community Day at Contemporary Craft on May 10th as part of Remake Learning Days 2025.

I've been to Contemporary Craft before for previous events and art galleries. It's a great art gallery and maker's space. While I was there for Remake Learning Days 2025 this year, I learned how to make wire flowers and got to look at some of the artists in residency at work in their studios in the main building. Across the street they had a newly opened second building, which I hadn't been to before. In that building, I made and colored flowers out of wood, got to design and press a pin, and got to do a kind of screenprinting using Legos upstairs. Both buildings had a great array of snacks and drinks as well.

Contemporary Craft is a great space for artists, art enjoyers, and anyone who wants to get creative!
