4.	Environment (Protection) Act, 1986, Environment (Protection) Rules, 1986, Environmental Impact Assessment Notification, 2006	NA	Rules 5 of the Environment (Protection) Rules, 1986: This rule provides the Central Government with the power to prohibit or restrict the location of industries and carrying on of processes and operations in different areas, depending upon various factors (as stated therein). This inherent power of Central Government is the touchstone for the requirement of an environmental clearance, which came into being upon the issuance of the EIA Notification. The environmental clearance is a requirement under the EIA Notification, required for all new projects by industries specified in the schedule to the notification. The process usually requires the submission of an environmental impact assessment report prepared by the project proponents mentioning the potential impacts of the project on the environment. Further, public hearings are also required to be done by the project proponents in order to address the concerns of the public in relation to the project, and the minutes of such meetings are also required to be mentioned in the report. The Expert Appraisal Committee then peruses the foregoing report and then	Same as above.
