

SL HERE

Time, energy, and effort you had to sacrifice.

How long did it take you to launch <product>?

You have spent some weeks constructing <product>, sacrificing time and effort to create the most value for your audience.

But you didn't because you believe that it will work out, and believe me, I honestly do not see anything wrong with what the <product> offers.

Perception is important, no matter how much value you offer if people are not intrigued they will not even think about clicking "purchase".

By improving your writing and working on intriguing people, more will click "purchase".

So, if you want to see your hard work paying off, I can send you some short writing that could be emailed to your list to intrigue more people to look at the <product>.

Best wishes,
Anaas Alkrad
