

OpenCV Live! Guest Info & Booking

Thank you for your interest in appearing as a guest on OpenCV Live! This document will tell you everything you need to know to have a great time and help provide the OpenCV community with an interesting, informative, episode of the show.

Facts & Figures

OpenCV Live! Is an hour-long (usually) weekly live streaming show wherein OpenCV CEO Dr. Satya Mallick and Director of Content & Creative Phil Nelson welcome guests from the worlds of computer vision and AI. Usually these episodes take the form of a presentation from the guest (that's you!).

OpenCV Live! averages 100-200 peak live viewers across our channels on Zoom, LinkedIn Live, YouTube, and Twitch with 5,000+ people watching some part of the episode in the first week. Episodes are promoted in OpenCV's newsletters and social media feeds which combined reach over 300,000 subscribers.

Guest Information

Guests are expected to prepare a 40-minute presentation on a topic, with slides using software such as Google Slides, Keynote, or PowerPoint.

Episodes air live 9:00am - 10:00am Pacific time Thursdays with guests and hosts joining at 8:45am to ensure audio and video quality as well as quickly review the content of the episode before going live. To see past episodes, visit the official OpenCV Live! YouTube channel <https://youtube.com/@opencvofficial>

If you've got an interesting topic to present on OpenCV Live, please choose an open date from the official calendar at <https://fantastical.app/phil-nelson/opencv-live>

Once you've chosen a date, Phil will follow up with an email confirming the episode title and topic, as well as asking for recent high-resolution photos of the (up to) 2 guests planned for your episode.

If you have any questions please don't hesitate to contact Phil, the show's producer, directly at phil@opencv.org
