

Women In War

*We were nurses in the war.
We didn't care what gender we were. It doesn't matter.
We owed our lives to fight for this country
We don't need a right to help our country. We owe it to the soldiers and the injured men
There were decisions and sacrifices that we had to make.
Our small setups on the battlefield where we worked on the injured men, was attacked by our enemies.
We lost many.
We struggled, but never complained
We just worked harder.
We stood strong and fought hard.
Until the war had ended.*

In memory of the women nurses, who worked on the injured men.
We need to remember their hard work and dedication to the soldiers on the battlefield in World War 1.

*Eleanor Tompson
Eden Pringle*

<https://cdnhistorybits.wordpress.com/2015/06/02/canadian-ww1-nurses/>

