

The Unknown Anomaly

An SCP Fanfiction by u/-Zilla

Location: [REDACTED], Germany

19███. In the middle of nowhere, one lonely building is located. Nobody knew where it came from, it wasn't there yesterday, it has never been there. The MTF Unit [REDACTED] was sent out to investigate. The soldiers entered this building built out of bricks, with signs of corrosion, through an 3x3 meter entrance, only to find that the 24-story building is hollow.

"This is strange", said Commander Daxton Goodman, "who builds an building without building floors, however there are balconys".

"I know", said Soldier Jim Parson while brightening the building with his flashlight, "I feel so good, I do not know why I am extremely comfortable."

"Uhm I do not know what we have found, however it is not an regular building", stuttered Paul Myers as he pointed to the roof.

"What the hell", screamed Daxton as the whole MTF Unit aimed at the roof.

The roof imitted an red light. Nothing else except this light was visible if you look up to the roof.

"We have to report this now", shouted the Unit's Engineer Tim Gates, as he grabs his communication device, only to find out that they do not have any signal.

The entire unit located themselves outside of the building, only to find out that a lake has been created.

"This is an anomaly, we have a signal now, report thi-" Tim got interrupted by an terrifying scream.

"W-What was that", stuttered Jim.

10 Minutes later an Helicopter lands and picks up the MTF Unit.

After 4 hours the area has been secured my multiple MTF Units

3 Days later

After the Anomaly has been secured, test were discussed. After the green light was given by O5███,

Dr. [REDACTED] was assigned to study this anomaly. He travelled from [REDACTED] to the location of the anomaly, to study the object.

After Dr. [REDACTED] took a look at the report that was written after MTF Unit [REDACTED] scouted out the area, he requested an team of construction workers to build an stairway up to the red roof of the building, that was now codenamed as “The Red House”.

The stairway was built in only 1,5 hours,  due to the ready to deploy stairs that were transported to “The Red House” from the nearby site [REDACTED].

After that 2 D-class personnel, each one equipped with an hiking kit with selected items(including: Tent, 10 MRE's, Water purifier, gas masks, instant-fireplaces and an state of the art communication device), in company by MTF Unit [REDACTED] and Dr. [REDACTED] were sent to the location of the anomaly.

The operation codenamed “Operation: RED” was started with the words “Alright D-Class Personnel, proceed to the top of the stairway” of Dr. [REDACTED], when they entered “The Red House”.

And then they started their journey. When they reached the top of the stairway, they contacted Dr. [REDACTED] through their communication device. They got the order to enter the red, and so they did.

An weird, loud, sound was could be heard as the two D-class entered the red. After that, nothing could be heard from them ever again.

Meanwhile inside of the Red

The D-class Tom and Jake faded away as soon as they touched the Red.

Tom: “W-Where the heck are we? What is this?”

Jake: “I don't know, everything is red. I can barely see you”

Tom: “I know, but you are just one meter away. What the hell”

Jake: “Are we inside of it?”

Tom: “Possible. It's a red nothingness.

Jake: “Huh, that's a good name for this abyss.”

Tom: “Let's set up a camp. I don't want to be out in the open.”

Jake: “I agree, we aren't sure if we are the only ones here”

The duo sets up a camp. They decided to use one tent for now.