

Project Questions – Set 16

- How did you feel about the project in the beginning and when you finished it? Give examples from your project and explain.

In the beginning I felt	overwhelmed	because	It seemed like a lot of work	For example,	I did a project about...	There's lots of articles about it It's had to choose what information to put into project.
	scared					There is almost no information on this topic anxious		I'm not very good in English and it seemed too much for me.		I had to read 3 articles in English and summarize them. It was very difficult.
	nervous
	worried		I don't like working in a team. I prefer to work on my own.		We did this project with 2 of my friends	and we argued all the time.
	apprehensive					And in the end I did most of the work alone because we had trouble meeting each other.
	curious		I am passionate about the topic we chose and wanted to know more about it.		I wanted to know	about	...
	fascinated					what delighted					how
	excited					why
	thrilled		I was interested in the topic and wanted to know more about it.		We had a blast doing a survey together.
	anticipation

When I finished it I felt	proud of myself	because	It was a difficult job but I did it	For example,	I had difficulty with ... but I managed to do it anyway.
	satisfied		It took a lot of time and effort to complete it		Only looking for information and summarizing it took us ...
	relieved		I didn't give up despite the hardships		At first, I couldn't find anything on the topic but I searched and searched and finally got what I needed.
	happy		I finally finished it		At first I didn't know how to do a survey but then I got some help and managed to complete it.
	frustrated		It didn't turn out like I wanted to.		I wanted to focus on ... but my friends insisted on writing about...
	dissatisfied		I couldn't get it done on time.		We had to finish it in February, but I had other things to do and could hand it in only in May tired		I put a lot of time and effort in it and expected a higher grade.		I thought I would get a hundred but I didn't

- How is what you learned in your project relevant to your life? Give examples from your project and explain.

I think that	the skills I acquired doing the project are	relevant and important for my life	because	I learned how to	summarize material	Which will help me in future
	The information I learned doing the project is			Now I know that	talk in English fluently
	Nothing in my project is				Write essays in English	It taught me a valuable lesson for life and now I am more aware of...
				My project was about ... It was interesting but has nothing to do with my everyday life.

- Which part of the project was hardest for you and in what way? Give examples from your project and explain.

The hardest part of the project was	doing the survey.	because	When I started asking people about ... many of them didn't want to answer my questions.	For example,	Some of them said ...
			When I was preparing questions for the survey about ... I got stuck. It was difficult to come up with meaningful questions.		I wanted to know people's attitude to the topic but didn't know how to get a more detailed answer.
	writing an article based on the information I found		There was so much information I lost myself in it.		I got a dozen links just for the first question I asked.
	looking for the relevant information		There was next to none information about the topic I chose. It was really difficult to find anything about the subject .		Here wasn't almost anything even on the ... official site. I had to ask ... for help putting it all together		to summarize everything I learned in a short article was an ultimate challenge.		I found seven articles about ... and I had to decide which information was important and to write a short article for the newspaper.

- Do you think doing a project is a good way to learn? Give examples from your project and explain.

Yes, I believe	that doing a project is a good way to learn	You learn lots of new things on the topic that interests you and not your teachers	For example,	I did the project about ... and I learned that ...
		When you look for information yourself you remember it better.		I found out that ... and I was so surprised that I couldn't talk about anything else for weeks
		A project is a less stressful type of work.		You can use Google translate if you don't understand things and you can ask somebody to check your work before you hand it in.
		You can rely on your friends' strengths		Nobody stands behind your shoulder. You have more time to think.
No, I don't think	because	When you do the project with friends each one just does what he does better.		In our project we split the roles. I looked for information, my friend who is better in English summarized and our computer whiz illustrated and
		It's too time-consuming		I had to sift through tons of irrelevant information to find traces of information about the subject of my project. The result was simply not worth the effort.
		It's a lot of effort with little efficiency		To do the project you look through tons of the articles and just translate them. You don't have time to learn new words.
