Vehicle Shipping & Heavy Haul Transport

Depending on the company, you may need to put down a partial payment. In some cases, the auto shipper may provide a discount if you pay for your service in advance. With Sherpa Auto Transport, you'll make an initial payment when a carrier is assigned to your shipment and pay the balance when your vehicle arrives. If you want your vehicle to arrive as clean as when you left it, enclosed auto shipping is the service to choose. Your vehicle is protected from the weather, dust, dirt, and traffic grime. Throughout its journey, your pride and joy will be protected and the carrier will deliver a spotless car.

However, your final rate will not be locked until you are matched with a carrier or, in some cases, until your vehicle is delivered. When deciding how to ship a car, you'll likely want to arrange your vehicle shipment through a broker. Auto shipping brokers work with a large network of drivers to help customers find their cheapest options. Because of the logistics involved, working through a dedicated broker is the most efficient way to match customers with carriers. This article will show you how to ship a car and how much it typically costs. We've reviewed the best car shipping companies in the industry, and we'll recommend some of our top picks below.

The cost to ship a vehicle ranges anywhere from 53 cents per mile to more than $2.30 per mile. Absolutely one of the best shipping companies you could ask for. Their commitment to seeing that everything arrives safe and in mint condition is their TOP Priority. I have used Ship A Car two times in the last three years to ship our cars half way across the US each time. Tom and Bob were fantastic to work with and I was so thankful for their regular communication and follow up to make sure everything was taken care of to my satisfaction.

My uncle had to meet the driver at a shopping plaza but that was ok bc I was warned that the truck may be too big to get down my street. Justin called afterwards to make sure everything went as planned. Will use again when I have to ship the car back east next year.
Terminal-to-terminal shipping is often the cheapest way to ship your car, which involves dropping your car off at a regional storage terminal and picking up at one near your new home. Terminal-to-terminal options may not, however, be available if you are moving to or from a rural or remote location.

Cross country vehicle shipping, also called auto transport, is the process of moving your car long distances without driving it yourself. If you're moving from one coast to another, or just clear across from Texas to Montana, you may find you need to ship your car. Once you select a reputable company, you decide on dates for shipping. The company will pick up your car, load it into either an open or closed container trailer depending on your requirements, and then they will drop the car off at the new location. Montway Auto Transport has been in business since 2006 and is one of the most popular car shipping companies. It offers door-to-door car transport service with both open and enclosed options anywhere in the country, plus it can arrange international transport.

The only thing to keep in mind here is that the cost to ship a car from New York to California can be higher since the auto transport company gives you immediate service. Sherpa Auto Transport offers a straightforward and reliable car shipping process with well-regarded customer service and a Price Lock Promise. Montway Auto Transport is a very well known name in the car shipping world. This company simplifieds the car shipping process and even includes the cost of insurance in the price. Their quote process is simple and they sustain excellent reviews within the industry. AmeriFreight - AmeriFreight offers various shipping methods to move vehicles across the country, but their differentiating factors are the add-ons that make shipping more comfortable.

For moving your car inexpensively, you may consider having your moving company do the job. The least costly way to have an auto transport company is to book a spot on an open trailer that's shared with several other deliveries. On one end of the spectrum, there are professional drive-away services that manage qualified drivers for these gigs.

Extremely pleased with the service and especially the driver. My son was happy and the trike was delivered safely and a day early. Keep in mind, though, that you should not use your car as a shipping container, and you need to leave enough room for someone to comfortably get into and out of the driver's seat. Also, if you are hiring a shipping company, you do not want to store anything perishable or fragile.

After a final inspection is completed and everything looks good, you'll simply sign the Bill of Lading to accept your delivery. Your vehicle will be assigned to the carrier that can best accommodate your route, timeframe and price. Now that you have agreed to the assigned carrier, initial payment will be due to secure your spot on the carrier's truck.
