relevance of the research, and its connection with important scientific or practical aims, etc.). First level headings are in all caps. Introduction is without number.

Headings should always be followed by text. Text should be with normal 14-point font (Times New Roman, 1.5-spaced).

References must be in APA style (http://www.apastyle.org/learn/tutorials/basics-tutorial.aspx). References should be clearly cited in the body of the text, e.g. (Ivanenko, 2018) or (Ivanenko, 2018, p. 16), or (Ivanenko, 2018; Salnikova, 2014, p. 15), or (Ivanenko, 2018a) and (Ivanenko, 2018b); the author's surname is indicated in the original source language.

1. FIRST LEVEL HEADING (N. HEAD 1)

Next first level headings are with number. You can make any number of selected parts of the article and title of headings, but in general they should present the purpose of the study, its methodology, main results, discussion and conclusions, and the heading should be suitable to the content and context.

These may be such heading: analysis of the latest / recent researches and publications, or theoretical framework, and methodology, and empirical database; research aim and tasks; main research material with validation of the received results; conclusions and outlooks for future researches in this field, etc.

1.1. Second Level Heading (Head 2)

The all FIRST LEVEL HEADING (N. HEAD 1) can be divided into some Second Level Heading (Head 2) and even third ones (you can use italics, but not underlines). The all Second Level Heading (Head 2) aren't in all caps.

1. FIGURES AND TABLES

Figures and tables should be inserted in the appropriate places in the text.
