P.S. what is Grist?

Grist refers to malt that is ground (milled) in the brewhouse at the beginning of the brewing process. The term “grist” is also used to refer to the “grain bill” of a beer or the cereal part of the recipe. Therefore, a brewer may refer to a beer “brewed from a grist containing 90% pale malt and 10% crystal malt.”

✓huh. Got it!
