

ADLs and analysis preservation

For ADLs to work in full power, we would need databases for

- Description files
- Object structure types
- Object selections
- External functions
 - Functions computing the same quantity, but with different arguments
 - Same function written in different language, like c++, python

How about tracking with doi numbers?