

It's a startup community that teaches SEO and gives tons of information and stats daily for free.

Research

- What is the current situation of my audience, and why is it so painful?

He is trying to build a startup business, but finances and marketing are a real challenge. He believes himself to be an entrepreneur and that big things await him, but the struggle feels demoralizing and is doing more damage than good (superficially, at least).

- What is the dream state of my audience, and why is it so desirable?

To succeed in his startup and to have good investments that are making him good income. His "ideal" is to be a "business guru" that's better than everyone else and makes money like it's nothing. He won't admit to it, but he does kind of have a superiority complex, where he feels like everyone else is wasting their time, unlike him, who watches business and investing content on youtube.

- What is the underlying problem my audience has that's stopping them from reaching their dream state?

Quality information. There's only so much online business content can give you. He doesn't know the actual basics of finance, SEO, and startup marketing. He's learning all that the hard way, failure after failure. If they consumed content that was about real results and things that actually matters in startups (boring as it may be) they would succeed in a faster pace.

- How does my product solve their problem?

Daily information that genuinely matters in the current business climate. Also a community filled with people trying to do the same thing, where they share their successes, and more importantly, their failures. Learn what to do and what not do. Receive information that actually affects startups from the core instead of the fancy stuff you usually see online. The numbers, the stats, the stories, and the grunt work.

Avatar: Ansh, Indian, 26, Software developer looking to build his own startup company. He's had 0 success as of recent and is stuck working a 9-5, that he doesn't hate, but still feels like there's much more in store for him than that. Has a bit of a superiority complex and feels like he deserves to be successful because he consumes business content as opposed to the rest who waste their time on tiktok dances and memes.

Consume THIS instead of mainstream business media to avoid failure.

Mainstream business media and content is just what it is: Mainstream. For the general public.

NOT made for actual entrepreneurs dealing with the trials and tribulations of owning a startup.

There's something WAY better for entrepreneurs to consume than the typical "business" content you find online.

That is, if you're actually serious about turning your dream of hopping out the Rolls Royce with a big-faced watch a reality.

Take a quick, 5-10 minute look at it once a day, will give you more valuable business information than any online "guru" ever will.

No more getting excited over what the man on the screen exaggerated for 20 mins...

Just to realize that what he said doesn't apply at all to your startup.

Get relevant, game-changing business material that can be transformed into results.

All collected from established entrepreneurs, marketers, and SEO experts who know what to look out for to avoid soul-destroying losses that completely sidetrack your finances... Or know what opportunities to pounce on for parabolic success!
