

What Happened?

BY: Oliver Jones

Chaotic Brilliance (Top-Right), William Melp (Top-Left), Bran O. Raisin (Bottom-Right), and the late Check M. Brain (Bottom-Left) pictured.

4, which is how many men have governed the Republican Party in only the span of a few weeks. Now many of you may be asking yourself why? And damn it, I wish I had an answer for you, but it isn't as simple as you may think. These four men have a long and complex history within the party, and what led them to take hold of the Chairmanship is even more complex: All the trouble in the GOP can be pinpointed to an exact time and place: the electoral defeat of President Gunnz011.

The moment the election was called, the dominos started falling; President Gunnz soon after leaving the party attempted to start his party, and all but one Senator found themselves registering for unemployment, the GOP found itself further and further away from a House Majority, and the "enfranchised Conservatives" began targeting moderate members of their party, all of which was just the perfect storm for the inevitable. That election changed the Republican Party forever, a fractured party could no longer support itself and everyone was looking for someone to blame. Now one would obviously blame then-Chairman Chaotic Brilliance, but they didn't, not yet, instead, the blame fell on Gunnz and the moderates. Many of whom promptly left after being blamed, was it right to blame them? In retrospect, no, but it was an easy scapegoat for the establishment, unfortunately after that things started to fall.

State elections were on the horizon for the country and while all other parties were eager to start throwing punches, the Republican Party leadership struggled to muster up a strong roster for the state. With major hitters fleeing and others absent, the leadership had to settle for what they could, and many of the candidates didn't even know they were going to run until the day of the candidate deadline. Even with this major fork in the road and candidates were ready for a fight, much of the rank-and-file of the GOP was ready to do what needed to be done. But then the news broke," the formerly ousted Chairman of the Republican Party, Chaotic Brilliance, failed to submit the proper candidate filing paperwork". The party was ready to burn the leadership at stake, how could the leadership of a major party forget to do the most important part of running a party? By God's grace, the FEC had mercy on us and allowed us to run, but the damage was done, when the first poll came out we trailed at a steady fourth place, it was very comfortable throughout the rest of the election. A few weeks into the election, out of nowhere the worst occurred.

One after another, members of the House Republican Caucus resigned, and one night the entire structure of the Republican Party disbanded under the orders of Chairman Brilliance, and then just like that they were gone. Local and state offices in the GOP were left stunned: What were they going to tell their constituents? Were they just going to say that they gave up? Many of them said no, and this newly-Republican Party propelled former Senator and Lieutenant Governor of the Chesapeake, William F. Melpp8836 to the Chairmanship. Melp was handed a fractured party, but even before the dust settled Melp had begun rebuilding. Melp rebuilt the party from the ground up with the help of many old-guard members, soon they filled the house GOP caucus and began replacing the broken parts of the party, but they were far from the end of the tunnel. State elections were coming to an end and many of the GOP candidates were still polling in fourth place as the shattered leadership struggled to fix this unrepairable mistake. Come election night, the GOP came in fourth in almost every state, Chairman Melp lost his very own race, but luckily we managed to muster one Governor. The Republican Party went from a major second party to a struggling third party in one week, the Chairman failed to even win his race, this wasn't Melp's fault but it hit him hard.

Everyone believed that Melp would lead the Republican Party for a long time, some compared him to the next Prelate, the great lion of the senate, and the Republican Chairman that saved the GOP after the BMP (Bull Moose Party) split. But it came as a stunning surprise when he announced that he would not seek re-election as Chairman. In his now leaked farewell address to Melp, he stated: "I hope that the party will fully heal under the wise chairmanship of CheckMyBrain, the most qualified man I can think of to take the party under his wing. Again this is not a goodbye, I will still be around! ". With Melp out of the picture, the Republican Party elected a new Chairman, Check "The Brain" Johnson. Brian was one of the old guard members who along with Melp re-built the party, but not too long ago he was behind the major force that almost killed the party, The Bull Moose Party. Brain had served as Chairman before in August 2018 so he was the perfect man to take the party in the right direction but in a sudden twist of fate, The Brain was assassinated, his tenure only lasted an hour and thirty minutes later. The Brain's last reported words were, "Shut the f*ck up BOOM.", in reference to the former Vice Chairman BOOM!, perhaps the shortest chairman tenure in Republican history, with the now vacant chairmanship, BranofRasin, a former Chesapeake governor, was thrust into power.

Which brings us to today, where Bran has the Republican Party in his hands, but people are wondering if he is the right man. Republican insiders revealed that they have an old office joke about Governor BranofRasin, "Is he a liability or an asset?", Chairman Bran has had a very checkered relationship with the party establishment spanning years. Chairman Bran gained his reputation by appointing political whackjob PresentSale to the Senate with expressed disapproval of the GOP leadership, Bran was also responsible for dividing Chesapeake's electoral votes which some question whether or not it cost Gunnz the election, and perhaps maybe if BranofRasin fell in party line I wouldn't be writing this very article. But no matter how you feel, he's the Chairman now and our very survival depends on his success, may God have very mercy on Chairman Bran.

It almost seems that the Republican Party has been forever cursed with incompetent Chairmen and unstable leadership, we can only pray that we break this curse and begin a new age of the Republican Party. God save the GOP! The King is Dead, Long Live the King!