Application: Preferred Providers of Life Sciences Talent

EDC is soliciting applications for Preferred Providers of Life Sciences Talent - Lab Technicians. Preferred Providers are education programs recognized by employers for their alignment with industry skills requirements for Lab Technicians (Also referred to as Research Assistant). Preferred Providers help address talent shortages while increasing diversity in high-demand jobs. Benefits of Preferred Provider designation include:

- Public recognition through EDC's marketing channels, feature on EDC's Preferred Provider map, student highlights on EDC's blog.
- Priority access to fully-funded internships for students in small companies, and connections to larger companies.
- Work-based learning opportunities for students including networking events and career fairs.
- Preferred Provider marketing toolkit (badge, press release, marketing, and outreach materials).
- Annual briefings on talent demand alongside local employers.

Please note: your application will need to be completed online in one sitting.

APPLICATIONS ARE DUE BY DECEMBER 1st, 2021 at 11:59PM.

This version of the application was created for your reference while preparing your submission.

You may submit your application here.

All Preferred Provider applicants will be evaluated by employers on the following criteria:

- Course alignment with employer-defined skills requirements for Lab Technicians.
- Practical application of skills
- Diversity & inclusion, including demonstrated ability to reach and serve a diverse student body
- History of employer engagement

Application outline:

- Section 1: Applicant information
- Section 2: Course alignment with skills requirements
 - Section 2A: Technical skills
 - Section 2B: Practical application of skills
 - Section 2C: Employability skills
- Section 3: Diversity & inclusion
- Section 4: History of employer engagement
 - Section 4A: Descriptions of industry engagement
 - Section 4B: Employer testimonials (optional)

IMPORTANT NOTES ABOUT SECTION 2 ON COURSE ALIGNMENT WITH SKILLS REQUIREMENTS:

- This section makes up the bulk of the application.
- You may apply as a program, department, or as an individual major within a department. Graduate programs may apply separately. From this point in the application, we will refer to the program, department, or major for which you are applying as simply "the program."

- For each skill listed in the application, you may describe up to 3 individual courses or series of courses offered by the program that teach to that skill.
- The collective set of courses or series you list in the application should represent a typical course load for the majority of students within the program for which you are applying.
- We ask that for each course, you indicate at which point in the program is a student most likely to complete each course or series, and provide an estimated proportion of students who take that course at some point in the program compared to the total number of students enrolled in the overall program.*

Once designated, Preferred Providers will conduct outreach to students of their program for industry engagement and internship opportunities without needing to track the individual courses they have taken. As such, we should be able to confidently state the following: the majority of students within this Preferred Provider program, department, or major are taking courses aligned with the skills employers look for in entry-level lab technicians, as outlined by the application.*
