

Mimi Johnson

Mimi Johnson hails from North Carolina, and has lived in several places around the world before arriving in Bend, OR. After working in the wine industry for more than 20 years, she shifted her focus to working with parents of neurodiverse children. A mother to two amazing teenage girls, one of whom has autism, Mimi is ridiculously curious and passionate about neurodiversity. Her role as Parent Partner with Early Intervention at High Desert ESD entails supporting families as they move along their journey of learning about their child's autism. Mimi is grateful to have the opportunity to spread the word that neurodiversity is normal, and that our children- particularly those who are differently-wired - are our greatest teachers. When not at work, Mimi can be found outside playing in nature, cooking, reading, sharing time with precious friends or soaking up time with her family.
