

Today, Senator Tripp has traveled back to his state of Dixie. The Senator has been busy recently, trying to get his landmark Justice Act passed on Capitol Hill. However, Today he has made the trip back to campaign for the Dixie Dems.

“Hello Dixie. It’s great to be back here with y’all. I’m here because we have an election coming up in a few days. You know, state elections are sometimes overlooked. They oftentimes get overshadowed by a Senate race or a Presidential race. However, this election is important. The future of our state is once again on the line.”

“Right now, we have a Governor who hasn’t been seen from in weeks. The only thing he’s done is sign bills and pen Executive Orders that his staff writes. And no, that’s not just a cheap shot. Senator Adith literally admitted it. Whitey has done absolutely nothing for our great state. Meanwhile, Democrats have passed some great bills that have been vetoed. When’s the last time Whitey proposed a bill? When’s the last time Whitey debated on the Assembly floor? Folks, where is Whitey? Where is Whitey? Where is Whitey?”

“Where is Whitey” chants begin.

“Who’s really the Governor of Dixie? Is it Senator Seldom? A person who legit voted against a disability rights bill? Is it Congressman Pik, a man who introduced a bill that came from Nazi Germany? Is it Assemblywoman Lilly, who has been in her job for an entire term and has accomplished nothing? Or, is it a legitimate snake, Adith. Is Snake Adith in charge of Dixie? A guy who asked you, the people of Dixie for your vote and then stabbed you in the back. Folks, here’s the answer. It doesn’t matter who actually writes Whitey’s EO’s and probably dresses him in the morning. The truth is they’re all at fault.”

“Because when a party tries to stop you from exercising your first amendment rights, they can’t be trusted. When a party tries to tear gas peaceful protests, they can’t be trusted. When a party tries to deny rights to individuals with disabilities, they can’t be trusted. When a party tries to take away your healthcare, limit your rights to make decisions on your body, and tries to invite racist culture into Dixie, they can’t be trusted.”

“The people of Dixie must stand up this election. We must stand up to a Governor who just isn’t up for the job. A Senator who just can’t be trusted because he simply already stabbed you in your backs. A Congresswoman who is so corrupt, she can’t even hide it. A Congressman who is a racist. A party that is not equipped to lead.”

“For once, this isn’t even about politics. High taxes vs Spending. Second amendment vs gun control. Healthcare vs... well no healthcare, I guess. This is about honor. It’s about decency. Character, truth, compassion, democracy. That’s what on the ballot in this election.”

“The people of this state have a choice to make. Let me be absolutely clear. Electing a Republican Assembly will fundamentally ruin our state. Healthcare will be stripped away, education will crumble, racism will skyrocket, immigrants, legal or not, will be deported. Guns will fall into the wrong hands and lives will be lost because of it. If this Governor has a majority, who knows what will happen.”

“But, my friends, it will not happen. They will not succeed in this election. They will not ruin our progressive state. I promise you, right here tonight, we will not rest until we win this election and win back this state. We won’t do it by dividing us, nor will we do it by stabbing our friends in the back. We’ll do it by uniting us! Thank you, God bless you, and God bless the great state of Dixie.”

After the event, Tripp posts this picture on Instagram.
