Course Description

Offers students an opportunity to become aware of and clarify their beliefs about language and language development in general and in relation to teaching and learning in particular. Examines ideologies, beliefs, feelings, and dispositions about teaching, learning, and language to inform students' teaching. Uses personal experiences as a teacher and learner to shape their individual ideologies, beliefs, feelings, and dispositions. Analyzes how to teach in ways that enhance learner proficiency in using language for academic purposes, informed by students' knowledge as language learners and an understanding of the multilayered nature of language. This is the first of a two-course sequence. The course will address the following TPEs: 1.1, 1.4, 1.6, 2.3, 2.4, 2.5, 3.2, 3.5, 4.1, 4.4, 4.7, 5.3, 5.6, 5.7, 6.7, 7.1, 7.3, 7.5, 7.6, 7.7, 7.8, 7.10, 7.11.

ELJJ Goals

We aim to prepare teachers who have the disposition and skills necessary to gather empirical evidence needed to examine and evaluate curricula, pedagogies, and assessment for justice, inclusion, transformation, and liberation. We also want to be sure that ELJJ teachers can build on their students' and their own assets to ensure that growth and learning is developmentally appropriate and healing. We expect teacher candidates in our program to identify ideologies and inequities from a critical perspective and work toward dismantling them and foster conditions that are fair and equitable. Finally, we see ourselves as a community who appreciates our shared experiences and vision to change education for the better and enjoys our collaborative work. By the end of this course, the students should be able to demonstrate their achievement toward the goals through a set of Measurable Criteria as listed following each goal:

Goal 1. Safety, Wellbeing, and Care

- a. 1. Value and aim to ensure the safety and wellbeing of every student as well as colleagues in ELJJ (and other programs).
- b. 2. Actively create a space that welcomes, includes, nurtures, and appreciates students of all backgrounds.
- c. 3. Creates and maintains a safe working and community environment for students, colleagues, and self.
- d. 4. Recognize that teaching is inherently moral and guided by an ethic of care.

Goal 2. Culturally-sustaining, anti-racist teaching

- a. Recognize that one's positionality (i.e., gender, race, sexual orientation, socioeconomic background) and life experiences biases our lens in how we one sees others, particularly those who come from vastly different positions.
- b. Demonstrate interest in learning with and from others, especially those from historically marginalized communities and who are not in positions of power.
- c. Purposely seek out the perspectives of those from nondominant backgrounds (i.e., people of color, undocumented, materially privileged, LGBTQAI).
- d. Practice intentional listening, making space for marginalized voices, in classrooms and community settings.
- e. Focus on how (not if) privileged parts of one's identity shape life and teaching practice.

Course Goals

1. Reflect critically on their beliefs and ideologies about language and their role in teaching and learning, and articulate how these beliefs and ideologies can shape instructional practices.
2. Demonstrate an understanding of various dimensions of language (e.g., phonetics, syntax, semantics, pragmatics) and apply this knowledge in designing instructional activities.
3. Use instructional strategies that promote students' proficiency in academic language, drawing on their understanding of language acquisition processes.
4. Integrate language development into content instruction, recognizing the reciprocal relationship between language learning and content learning.
5. Assess student language development and adjust instructional strategies based on student needs.

Assignments

Please note this syllabus includes hyperlinks with additional information to some assignments. They will be highlighted and formatted in the same manner.

1. Language Ideology Inquiry (25%): The goal of this assignment is to help you analyze and reflect on your views of language from a broad perspective. This inquiry project will help you examine the set of beliefs and feelings you have about language and how these relate to the larger societal systems and structures, particularly schools, to which we all belong. Language ideologies are conceptualizations we have about languages, speakers, and discursive practices. Not surprisingly, culture shapes language ideologies and political, social, economic, and moral interests influence the process. This assignment is made up of three pieces: a Language Autobiography, a Student's Language Biography, and a Comparative Analysis and Conclusion.

Grading criteria:

- Content: Clear and thorough explanation of personal beliefs about language and its role in teaching and learning.

- Understanding of students as language users and learners, including their history and linguistic assets
- Application: Explicit links between these beliefs and teaching practices. Incorporation of personal experiences as both a teacher and a learner.
- Critical Stance: Question existing language norms and practices and whom they advantage or disadvantage.

2. Language Dimension Analysis (20%): Candidates will choose a piece of academic text (e.g., a textbook excerpt, a scholarly article) and analyze it for various dimensions of language – phonetics, syntax, semantics, and pragmatics. Candidates will write a 3-5 page paper discussing their findings and implications for teaching.

Grading criteria:

- Content: Thorough analysis of the chosen academic text, highlighting the various dimensions of language – phonetics, syntax, semantics, and pragmatics.
- Application: Clear explanation of the implications of these dimensions for teaching.

3. Instructional Strategies Presentation (20%): Candidates will create and present a lesson plan demonstrating an instructional strategy that both is informed by and enhances students' academic language proficiency. The presentation should be 15-20 minutes and include a rationale based on research and theory, a demonstration of the strategy, and a discussion of potential applications and adaptations.

Grading criteria:

- Content: Clear and thorough presentation of the chosen instructional strategy.
- Application: Effective demonstration of the strategy and clear discussion of potential applications and adaptations.
- Connection to Research/Theory: Explicit connection of the strategy to research and theory in language development and content instruction.
- Presentation Skills: Clarity, organization, engagement of the audience, use of visuals.

4. Integrated Lesson Plan and Reflection (35%): Candidates will develop a lesson plan that integrates language development into content instruction and implement it with a small group of students or a peer. The lesson must explicitly address principles, research, and models associated with English Language Development, Specially Designed Academic Instruction in English (SDAIE), scaffolding, and differentiate between linguistic diversity among students, students with identified disabilities, and linguistically diverse learners with disabilities.

Candidates will submit the lesson plan, a video of the lesson (10-15 minutes), and a 3-5 page reflection on the lesson implementation and student learning. The reflection should discuss adjustments made based on student needs and include thoughts on what worked, what didn't, and why.

Grading criteria:

- Lesson Plan: Clear and detailed lesson plan integrating language development into content instruction. Explicit connection to standards and students' language development needs.
- Lesson Implementation: Effective implementation of the lesson with a small group of students or a peer. Effective use of instructional strategies, materials, and assessments.
- Reflection: In-depth reflection on the lesson implementation and student learning. Clear discussion of adjustments made based on student linguistic, academic, and special needs, what worked, what didn't, and why.

This analytic rubric will be used to evaluate your work.

Grading

All assignments in this course will be graded using a point system. Class attendance and participation are required. Students will have opportunities to engage in the class through discussions, presentation, and class activities.

College policy on incomplete courses is as follows: students qualify for incomplete grades only if they have completed 2/3 of the total coursework and are responding to unforeseen circumstances. In this course, students will qualify for consideration of an incomplete only if the required internship timeline goes beyond the semester. Students who have not completed substantial coursework should not assume that they will be given an incomplete at the end of the semester.
