Product category is one consideration because flower, pre-rolls, edibles, concentrates, vapes, and other formats can have different pricing structures. The specific product type, package size, quantity, brand, formulation, and current inventory can also affect the final purchase cost.

Promotions may affect pricing when they are currently offered, but customers should verify the applicable terms rather than assuming a discount is available. Taxes can also affect the final amount paid. Instead of relying on an outdated price found elsewhere, customers can review the dispensary's current product information before purchasing.

Payment policies should also be checked in advance. If a customer wants to use a particular payment method, the store can confirm whether it is currently accepted. This approach provides more reliable purchasing information without inventing exact prices, fees, discounts, or payment options.
