3. Customization Guide

3.1 Golden Rules

This customization guide includes a basic introduction to various parameters in the customization panel which you can edit. In case you need to fix a problem in the code, there are also useful annotations in the code to make customization/editing easier.

Generally speaking, if you encounter a problem with a code of mine, it would be good if you tried to solve the problem yourself first. Here is what you can do in case you run into a problem:

Check this customization guide. Most likely, I have covered the issue here, so you just need to follow along.

If the problem is not listed in the customization guide, there are various places where you can check if your problem has already been answered:

- the FAQ on silbrighthemes,
- the tags “answered” and “support” on silbrighthemes,
- the support blog silbrigsupport.

If you couldn't find an answer there either, feel free to send me a message via DM or ask box. If you sent a message via DM, I will – given that I feel that others could profit from my answer – make a post describing the issue and how to fix it. If you sent a message via ask, I will publish it on my blog in the aforementioned tags for others to find.

If you have to send me a message, here's some etiquette to keep in mind:

- Include the name of the code (e.g. Herzrasen, Theme 34).
- If it is a page you need help with, include the URL, e.g. username.tumblr.com/subpage.
- Try to describe the problem in detail – the more I know, the better I can help.
- Include “please” and “thanks” somewhere. I'm a person not just a bot. I am much more willing to help you if you're nice to me.

Be patient. I'm busy with matters of the real world and they have a priority.

Tooltip Text Transform	Text transformation of tooltips.	lowercase , uppercase, normal

¹ The bolded option is the default option on the first installation of the code.

3.4 Toggles

There are 16 toggles in the customization panel. Toggles allow you to en- or disable an element or a styling of one. Normally, when a toggle is disabled, it is gray, and blue if it is enabled. For reasons unknown, tumblr inverts these colours on the first installation.

Toggle	Purpose	Default
Show Captions	Show or hide captions on the index.	Inactive (gray).
Show Tags	Show or hide tags on the index.	Active (blue).
Custom Colored Text	Use the default coloured text provided by tumblr or customize the colors.	Active (blue).
Custom Controls	Use the default tumblr controls or the custom ones.	Active (blue).
Custom Lists	Use default lists or lists with custom icons.	Active (blue).
Italics	En- or disable italicized text.	Active (blue).
Serif Fonts	En- or disable fonts that are not sans-serif.	Active (blue).
Thin Italics	En- or disable thin italicized text.	Active (blue).
Show Sidebar Icon	Show or hide the blog icon in the sidebar.	Inactive (gray).
Rounded Corners	En- or disable rounded corners on elements.	Active (blue).
Post Shadows	En- or disable neumorphic shadows on elements.	Active (blue).
Custom Link [1 - 5]	Show or hide the custom links.	Active (blue).

3.5 Text Fields

In the customization panel, there are 21 text fields. With these, you can set a very specific value to an element. Some text fields are connected to a toggle. Only if that toggle is set to active (blue) does the text field have an effect on an element.

Text Field	Purpose	Active Toggle
Lightbox Opacity	Set the opacity for the background of the lightbox. Enter a value between 0 and 1.	–
Photoset Gap	Gap between individual photos in a photoset.	–
Not Found Title	Title for the Error 404 page.	–
