

BREAKING NEWS! Dave the Tomato Guys new website is here!!!!

Click open here >>>> www.growtomatoesasily.com & Bookmark

Popular Varieties with lots of Tomatoes, Pictures and Descriptions

“GrowTomatoesEasily”

From: Dave Freed The Tomato Guy

Email: Davethetomatoguy@gmail.com

Website/Blog: <http://growtomatoesasily.blogspot.com/>

In the following pictures you will see tomato plants that can produce lots of tomatoes. Some plants have only the potential of producing a handful so first plants some of those you know will produce lots of tomatoes.

You will see some plants in the ground can produce over 100# of tomatoes on one single plant. I always say, if I can do it, you can do it. I'll show you how. If you don't have a “Green Thumb”, I'll give you one.

Celebrity--Hybrid—an old standby. A 1984 All-America Selections. Grows like a bush to about 4 ½ foot tall and about 3 ½ feet wide. Medium size tomatoes (6-8-10oz), good flavor, thin skin and as you see---this one is growing in a container and packed with easily over 100 tomatoes.

Champion—Hybrid. Another old standby. Easy to grow, plenty of medium size tomatoes, good flavor, grows like a vine to about 6-7 foot tall. Growing in a Container.

Momotaro Hybrid Tomato--One of the most popular tomatoes in Japan. Good flavor. Plants produce plenty of round, medium-sized, perfectly smooth tomatoes with few blemishes or imperfections.

Early Girl.. Hybrid. Another old time standby. Grows like a vine to about 8 foot tall. This one growing in a half-wine barrel container. A little smaller size 6-8 oz tomatoes. For me, not so flavorful and the skin is a little thick so not really a favorite but lots of people like it. You get plenty of tomatoes - above plant has way over 200 tomatoes.

Big Beef....Hybrid. One of my favorites. Another All-America Selections award winner from 1994. Thin skin, lots of flavor and plenty of tomatoes...one plant can produce easily over 100# of tomatoes. 10-16 oz. size. The breeder of the "Big Beef" was also the same breeder of the "Celebrity" tomato plant. The Big Beef is a favorite. A must to plant every year.

Better Boy....Hybrid. Probably the most popular tomato grown in the U.S. and probably the easiest & best for Southern California. Grows like a vine, Beef Steak size, sweet. Thin skin. Can easily produce over 100# of tomatoes on one plant. Past records show one plant has produced over 300# of tomatoes. Fruit size 10-16 oz. The taste doesn't get any better. The above are growing in 25 gallon containers. Better Boy is a must every year. Probably my favorite hybrid tomato.

Above are 3 tomato plants. 2 Better Boy and 1 Big Beef. Each has over 100# of beefsteak size tomatoes.

Cherokee Purple. Heirloom. A must for growing every year. Absolutely great tasting, dark meat, thin skinned tomatoes. 10-12 oz. size tomatoes. Largest weighed in at about 1½#. Grows like a vine to about 6 foot tall.

Brandywine Black. Heirloom. Probably my favorite tasting tomato. Hard to find live starter plants mostly must start from seed. Easy to grow. Gets to 6-7 foot. Medium size fruit.

Lemon Boy. Hybrid. Tennis ball size 6-7 oz, a favorite for many people looking for a mild flavored tomato. Grows like a vine to about 7 foot tall. You can easily get 100 tomatoes on one plant.

San Diego sometimes called San Diego Red. Hybrid. Smaller in size. Grows like a bush to about 3 1/2 feet tall & 3 foot in diameter. It really packs up with medium 6-8-10 oz size, good tasting, thin skinned tomatoes. This plant has easily 50-75 tomatoes.

Brandywine Red. Heirloom. Grows like a vine to about 8 foot tall. Potato leaf type leaves. Beef Steak size tomatoes....good flavor, thin skin and as you can see, plenty of tomatoes. Year in and year out....Brandywine tomatoes are always in the top 3 national taste testing. It's a must to try.

Brandywine Pink.. Heirloom...great tomato flavor, thin skinned beef steak size tomatoes 8-16 oz. largest hit 2# and you get plenty. Grows like a vine to over 6 foot. This one is a must to grow each year. I like the flavor of the Brandywine Pink over the Brandywine Red. A great Heirloom tomato and easy to grow.

San Marzano....An Heirloom, San Marzano tomatoes are thinner and more pointed than Roma tomatoes. The flesh is thicker with fewer seeds, and the taste is stronger, sweeter and less acidic. They are a favorite of the “Chefs.” San Marzano tomatoes are great for cooking—canning, homemade tomato sauce, pasta sauce, etc. The San Marzano vines have a somewhat longer season than other paste type tomato varieties. As you can see in the picture you will get plenty of tomatoes. The store bought Roma tomato was created by crossing the San Marzano and 2 other varieties.

Cherry Tomatoes

Husky Cherry. Hybrid. My favorite cherry tomato. Grows like a bush to about 5 foot tall....Cherry tomato flavor just does not get any better than the Husky Cherry Red. Mildew...always attracts lots of mildew so use Sulfur Dust to control. Always lots of tomatoes.

Sun Gold Cherry Tomato. Heirloom. Pictured on the left...probably the easiest cherry tomato to grow, and it grows like a weed. The vines easily reach 12-15 feet producing lots & lots of tomatoes. This one grew up over the top of the cage & back down to ground level. For flavor—great flavor.

Some backyard tomatoes

You are welcome to share this information with others—clubs—perhaps share this with your general membership to include those that could not attend the lecture, your family, and friends.

Visit the above Blog for more useful information on “Growing Tomatoes Easily”

Thanks,

Dave Freed “The Tomato Guy”