

INACTIVE POST - NOT CURRENTLY ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS

Script Writer - English (Active)

Number of Positions	Job Category	Posted Date	Location
2	Medical publishing, Educational writing	Ongoing	Remote

Job Description:

You're a superstar at making concepts simple. You know anatomy and/or histology. You love to write. We want YOU!

Are you that one person friends come to for last minute concept summaries before an exam? Got a knack for explaining complicated concepts in simple terms? Do you have a background in anatomy and histology? Are you a great writer? Can you commit to at least 20 hours of work per week?

We are looking for candidates with excellent writing skills to compose our anatomy/physiology/histology scripts for our Kenhub video tutorials . You would be turning complex topics into simple explanations with an informal and engaging narrative style. You also need to be a 'visual' thinker, and create a step-by-step sequence of visual elements to be used in conjunction with your dialogue.

Join us in the crusade to revolutionise medical education - making anatomy and histology fun, efficient and easy, accessed anywhere, anytime.

Skills/Requirements:

- Excellent writing skills (English)
- Background in anatomy and/or histology
- Ability to turn any complex topic into simpler explanations
- Ability to commit at least 20 hours per week

Our Ideal Candidate:

Is able to work independently and thrives by achieving set goals Once you are confident in what you need to do, you can run with it and don't need a lot of direction. You are able to succinctly report your progress on a weekly basis. You are outcome-oriented and get a buzz from achieving your goals. That said, you are not on an island. You'll get help and support from the team and be part of our Kenhub family.

Is an exceptional communicator You know how to speak up about your ideas, concerns and suggestions. You don't take offense to constructive feedback and understand not to take things personally. You are efficient and smooth in your conversations.

Is creative, driven and action-oriented You're ambitious and you get things done. You're a do-er and a go-getter. When you see potential for things to improve, you think outside the box.

Is a believer of technology driven education You are dying to see medical education move forward in its method of teaching to catch up to today's technology. You relate to the pain and sorrow of carrying textbooks that makes studying confined to a desk. You understand that for students, they have little time to spare and every minute counts.

Is fun and easy-going As our team works remotely from each other, it is important for you to be open and to not take things too seriously. You're chilled like chilli bin in stressful situations yet still laser-focussed on your tasks. You don't have to be a joke master (these positions are highly competitive at Kenhub) but you know how to have a good laugh.

How to apply

---

Sign up and check out our illustrations: <https://www.kenhub.com>

Tell us in your short cover letter why you are our ideal candidate, what about Kenhub appeals to you, your background in anatomy, histology and writing skills.

We would also like to see a short sample of your creative ability: Write us a brief introduction (< 150 words) for a video based on any cranial nerve of your choice. Wow us with some lateral thinking on how you would captivate your viewer's attention in the first 60 seconds of your video! (Note: we don't just need to know how it will sound, but also some notes on how you envisage your thoughts might appear on screen!)

Send your CV and Cover Letter (or quirky equivalents) to student.jobs@kenhub.com quoting reference number KHSJ 00 SW.

Feel free to contact us if you have any questions. We don't bite, we are a friendly bunch.