Good time for a bloodbath in Aleppo? Putin thinks so

Our best policy is to unite with our allies and contain emigration from the Middle East. Russia and the Middle East are both greatly weakened now that shale oil and natural gas have made their main export relatively inexpensive. We should cooperate with all nations, and try to help them to succeed, but on our terms, and to mutual benefit.

The Middle East is a population bomb, which combined with low oil and gas prices will create dire economic conditions. Millions are already intent on migrating. Russia and other underpopulated countries would be the logical new homeland for them, but they will probably not be welcome. The Southeast Asian Muslim countries are another possibility, but they are not likely to be welcome there either. The West should not let them in due to the Islamic desire to dominate any culture it enters. RCW

Donald Trump Has a Coherent, Realist Foreign Policy

Despite the bluster, Trump is articulating a bold vision of America's role in the world. And it demands a serious response — not the snickering of D.C. elites.

We spend far more on defense than all of our potential enemies combined. Meanwhile our armaments are not cost efficient and our military says it needs far more money. We have to ask ourselves where we are wasting money, and how we can get our "allies" to do their share. Trump is on the right track. He is saying things that no American politician has ever emphasized before. Things that are painfully obvious to any knowledgeable onlooker.

Trump has not yet addressed the national debt and does not seem to even understand the difference between the annual deficit and the national debt. I hope I am wrong about that, but what he has said is that he could pay it off in eight years. That is ridiculous.

Wars are won through mass destruction of the enemies infrastructure which it depends on for support. Once the citizens have fled the cities or died, the military can be attacked with bombing. This actually reduces total civilian mortality. This is exactly how we defeated Germany and Japan. We chose to let Stalin deal with most of the Eastern European nations which became part of the Soviet Union. Socialism could not compete with capitalism and the Soviet Union dissolved. Russia now has an economy the size of Spain and is falling fast.

We have failed in the Middle East by not being brutal enough, and not following through with any kind of plan. This is precisely how we lost in Vietnam.

Public support played a key role in all of our failures at war. The American people do not want to brutally defeat nations and stick around to rule them. We did so in Japan and Germany with good success until they were stabilized. We did the same in South Korea.

Our main problem in the Middle East is we never understood that this was a Shiite versus Sunni war and abandoned the conflict early under Obama. He has further failed by toppling Gaddafi and supporting The Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt which was thankfully toppled by the military.

Middle East. This is not part of our foreign policy! Assad protects Christians as does the military in Egypt.

185.

<https://theweek.com/articles/594458/western-troops-cant-stop-isis-saudi-arabias-wont-stop-isis>

We could destroy all Isis held areas, but the American public would not support it, and it might backfire in the long run.

We might not have ever won World War 2 without carpet bombing. Because of self imposed limitations and public opinion we may never win another war, unless we are directly attacked. Modern media shows the brutality of war in graphic detail. In WW2 much was censored, and that is no longer policy or possible.

Immigration must be strictly controlled, and the Middle East must be contained. We can offer help on a limited basis only. Islam will continue its quest to dominate the world no matter what help is received.*

“[I]t is possible to conceive of a pattern of limited nuclear war,” Kissinger wrote, “with its own appropriate tactics and with limitations as to targets, areas, and the size of weapons used.” The United States should therefore develop lower-yield nuclear weapons with greater accuracy that could be used against military, rather than civilian, targets. He advocated using “the smallest amount of force consistent with achieving the objective ...” Here, Kissinger was applying Clausewitz to nuclear war. War, even nuclear war, could be limited by the political objective of the war. The U.S., therefore, had to develop the military wherewithal to fight wars across the spectrum of conflict. “[W]e require,” he wrote, “a continuous spectrum of nuclear and nonnuclear capabilities.”

Sherman, undersecretary of state for political affairs, angered many South Koreans with comments that seemed to tell the country to give up hardline nationalist policies toward North Korea and to seek closer ties with its neighbor.

The South Korean government issued a formal diplomatic protest to the State Department over the remarks, sources said.

“Nationalist feelings can still be exploited, and it’s not hard for a political leader anywhere to earn cheap applause by vilifying a former enemy,” Sherman said Friday in a speech at the Carnegie Endowment, a think tank.

Our State Department seems to be working against America in most cases!

He is determined to keep Europe dependent on natural gas from Russia, sold at high price. Ukraine has been making progress on fracking. His propagandists are fighting fracking worldwide as it is the greatest threat to the Russian economy. He cannot win, because fracking is a worldwide phenomenon. He can slow down competition with continued disinformation, propaganda, and subverting bordering countries. That is what he is doing to his best ability.

<http://www.breitbart.com/Big-Peace/2014/01/09/Analyst-U-S-Pulling-out-of-Afghanistan-at-Worst-Time> I disagree. Let the Sunnis and Shiites fight it out and stand aside. The Sunnis are the main threat to our interests. They are trying to take over sub-Saharan Africa which is predominantly Christian. That is where our future efforts should be expended as needed. We cannot afford to continue to spend money we do not have on wars we do not need. We do need to prevent Islam from sweeping south over predominantly Christian Africa. We no longer need Middle Eastern oil, we now have all the oil and natural gas we need in North America thanks to hydrofracking and horizontal drilling.

<http://www.eutimes.net/2013/12/putin-orders-saudi-arabia-destroyed-after-volgograd-terror-strikes/comment-page-1/#comment-83503> The USA, Russia, and Saudi Arabia are all competitors in the market for natural gas and oil. The Saudis are trying to weaken Russian influence in the Middle East and we should be trying to weaken both by ramping up our own oil and natural gas production ASAP. The less money they make the more we do, and the stronger we get while they get weaker. This is an economic war but the winners have the money if it comes to war. We should avoid war if at all possible. Let Muslims kill Muslims if they must. Turkey, Saudi Arabia, and Iran are all struggling for supremacy in the Middle East. Turkey is on the verge of a civil war. Saudi Arabia and Iran both fear civil wars. Saudi Arabia is fomenting violence and trying to expand Islam in Central Africa.
