Should I put my name, or what?

The EBI has attempted to infiltrate our organization. Let it be known to all under my command that the Set will not tolerate this intrusion. All EBI agents will be dispatched with extreme prejudice. I expect full compliance from each and every one of you. We strive for a better future, one that will not come to pass with the current political situation in Elendel. The EBI stands in the way of progress and virtue, they shall be purged from Scadrial in its entirety.

On a more personal note than that memo to the organization, yes! Please do put your name, it will help me organize the Set more effectively. And any other information you feel is prudent to give would be wonderful!

I guess you can't reveal yourself for security reasons? That makes sense.

If I may ask, what do you know already about me and my subset?

Not much. I know that the subsets each have unique abilities because of their occupation, I know that you have a doc with your subordinates, and I know that you like the color blue.

Since typing that I have since learned quite a bit about how subsets work, and I believe I know almost all of how your ability works, except for what exactly your subset does. Since it's PR I'm guessing it is a protection role of some sort?

No, just vote manip.

What kind of vote manipulation? Also, is there any chance I can tempt you to let me know who else is in your subset?

Moving a vote.

If you can tell me who the other subset leaders are. :P

That's a no-go unfortunately, the suits are vital components, and I'd have to give you four identities when you'd be giving me far less. Thank you for the information about your subset as a whole, I appreciate the information greatly.

Am I right in assuming that you have full control over which vote you move where?

Yes.

Amazing. This is a game, every player deserves the right to play as they wish so I will refrain from demanding anything, although I may make requests if I feel it necessary, just so you can take it to your subset for discussion. Also, I would like to request that you report to me if you take any action as a subset and what that action was.

I guess you're dead now. :P Probably we don't get a replacement either. Whoops.

Well, if I ever die and my successor gets access to this doc, hi!
