

Po-Tien's Stoney Blade, +3
by Ming

This is a +3 broadsword made of a single piece of volcanic rock, the handle wrapped in the hide of a xorn. As long as the wielder is on solid ground (not in a swamp, a boat, flying, etc.), the sword causes double damage to avian/flying/air creatures. Fleshy creatures struck with this weapon on a roll of natural 20 must save vs. spell or be turned to stone as the reversed spell stone to flesh for 5d4 rounds. Once per day, the sword may be thrust into mud, quicksand, or swampy ground and cast transmute mud to rock at 12th level. The sword only causes ½ damage to burrowing creatures or creatures made of earth or stone.
