New character ideas

I think that already a bunch of characters have to be scrapped, namely the doctors, scientists and Principal Kiddy which are very generic and unfunny and replaced with better characters. The parents are also very boring and unlikable and are background character tier talking object tier, at best we can ignore them if they're not part of the main characters' lives and stories in a meaningful way beyond moving talking objects.

So... we'll discuss new character ideas and await approval before introducing them to the wiki

I think we should also categorize the characters better by depth, personality traits and how fitting they are for certain story genres. That way we don't create duplicates or little brothers/sisters of certain characters like how we did with the mad scientists.

In my opinion certain characters like Agatha can be written with more depth or an extra personality trait then a writer should take an existing character and spin her into a different persona during a roleplay game or similar to fit that role better. In Agatha's case she can be written like Natsuko Hirose. I think a healthy dose of self-insert characters like Kyle & Stan are fine, but more depthful characters like Mr Garrison and Cartman should be prioritized and background characters/props should be ignored or treated like props, AKA most of the parents. Also any characters that do feel like existing characters in other media should be considered vice and versa, such as Mymy from Ongezellig. Her character is great and is worth copying and creating an archetype out of her just like Uncle Ruckus created an entire archetype of a hypocritical character who self-hates in an external way.

1. Simple neat characters like a female doctor who drinks piss to analyze the disease inside it is not only typical of gross-out "adult" humor cartoons like South Park, but exceptionally fitting. It's neat, it fits, it stays.
2. A babysitter who's really good at babysitting and looks like the ideal babysitter, but hides something unsettling about her or him like Mr Slave being a babysitter.
3. An asian pretending to be a ginger and infatuated with a certain culture, a reverso weeaboo.
4. A conspiracy theorist maniac with her own radio show rattling about the chemicals in the food. She gets annoyed when everyone just pretends to care in order to appear on TV or some other reason.
5. A lesbian character that flirts and touches girls only for the other girls to aggressively beat the shit out of her and for the girls to get horribly disgusted whenever the lesbian touches them.

I think there's a distinct lack of bookworm and voice of reason characters which may be for the better or for the worse depending how they're executed and in which groups, such as it's not a good idea to turn Posie into a bitch while they're being the voice of reason or helpful, I repeat: it's not a good idea. A voice of reason among the main 3-4 would drag things down.
