

There are mentions of depression, anxiety, sexual harassment (hostile school environment)

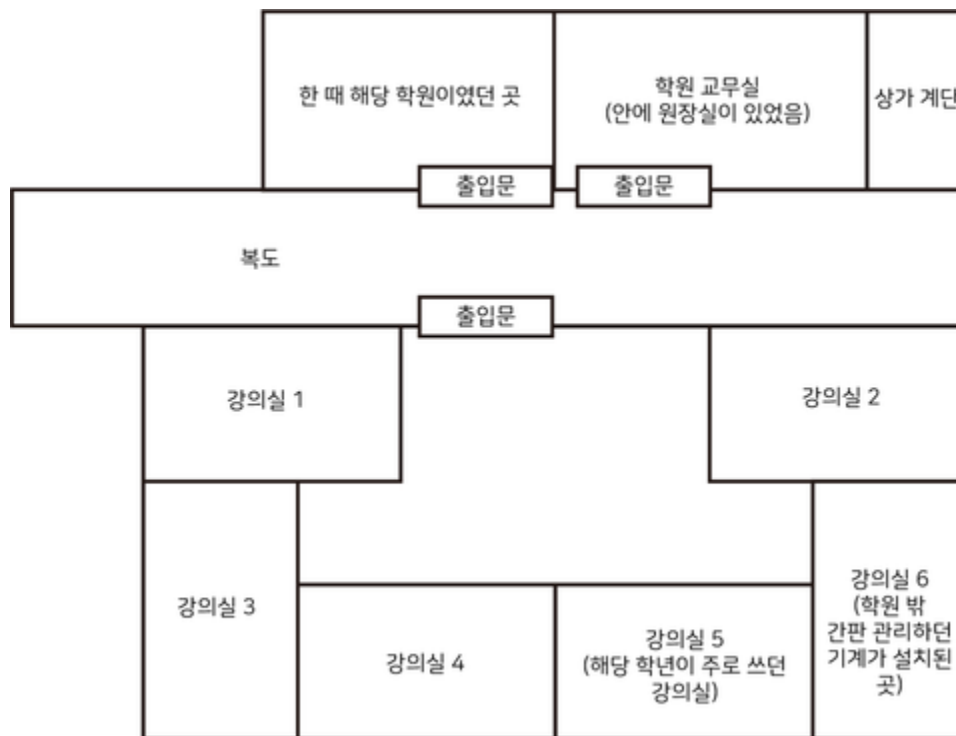

This is also a working document. Edits may continue to happen

Would like to emphasize that this was read over and edited by multiple native speakers.

<https://m.pann.nate.com/talk/358046247> original post here

Proof of graduation and psychiatric record are in a previous post so please look at that.

When I was in middle school, I went to “S” academy* located behind my school in “H” apartment complex on the 2nd floor of the shopping mall. The academy was relatively small so there weren’t a lot of people, and everyone in the same grade was put into one room. Below is a simple picture of the layout of the academy. (I couldn’t find a picture no matter how hard I tried)

At the time, I avoided the boys in the class because they either disliked me. So, I was alone at the academy.**

Among those boys, there was a boy that was popular and friendly with all the guys, and was the ‘center’ of the class.

That boy, if I tried to talk about my opinion or anything would tell me something along the lines of ... “what do you know” “don’t jump the gun (t/n essentially “shut up”). This happened multiple times when I would try to speak, so I would talk less and less while at academy. Later on, I didn’t speak at all.

Also that man would also.., make sexual jokes while i was present like it was nothing
It was to the point that he made sexual jokes so much, even in front of teachers, that the teacher told him to stop since there was a girl here

After that. It got better in front of the teachers, but continued when the teacher wasn't there.

This mostly happened during break or study time.

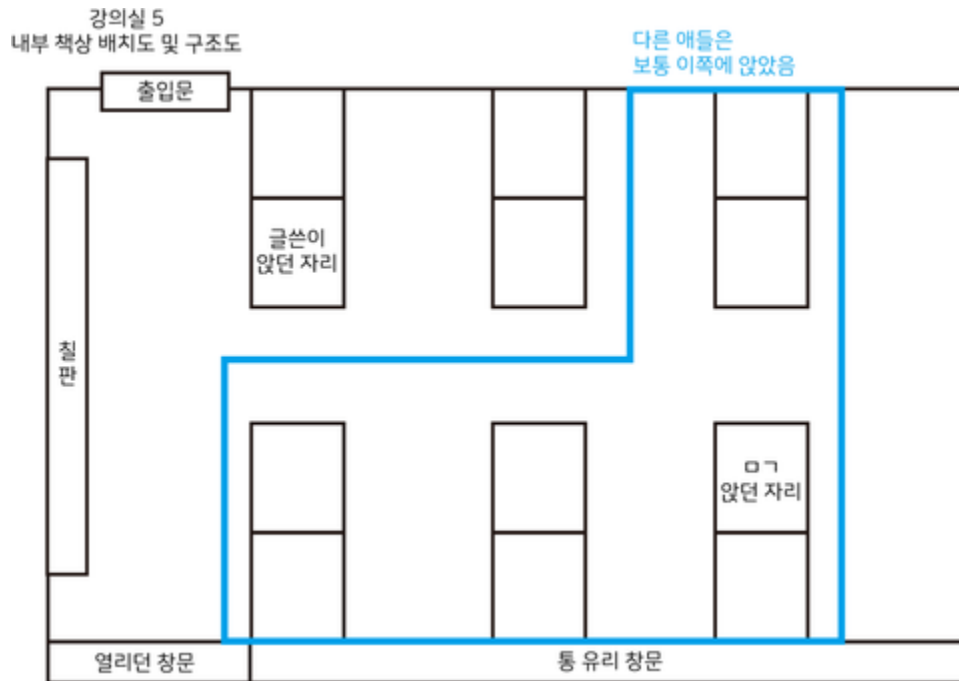

The boys would mostly make sexual jokes.

During break they would yell out, "you even decorated the pubes(?)!!!" I still remember vividly feeling uncomfortable**** with the various types of hairs/pubes they would draw. (I can not remember exactly who drew this, but out of the two that were at the board, he was one of them, and I remember him playing along with it)

(t/n it can be translated as "you are conspiring!!!" intentional sexual pun because pubes and conspiracy are similar in krn))

Below is a drawing of the classroom where this happened and where I was sitting.

(t/n op is in the front and mingyu is in the back. Blue outline is where most kids would sit)

Not long after, he left the academy and what I heard after was that he had gotten scouted by an agency while on his way to school. Our academy became quite loud. Saying things like, "isn't an idol going to be an alum from our academy."

At the time, I thought that it wasn't going to work out for him and moved on.

Since I continued to live in that neighborhood, I heard snippets that he had debuted but ignored it.

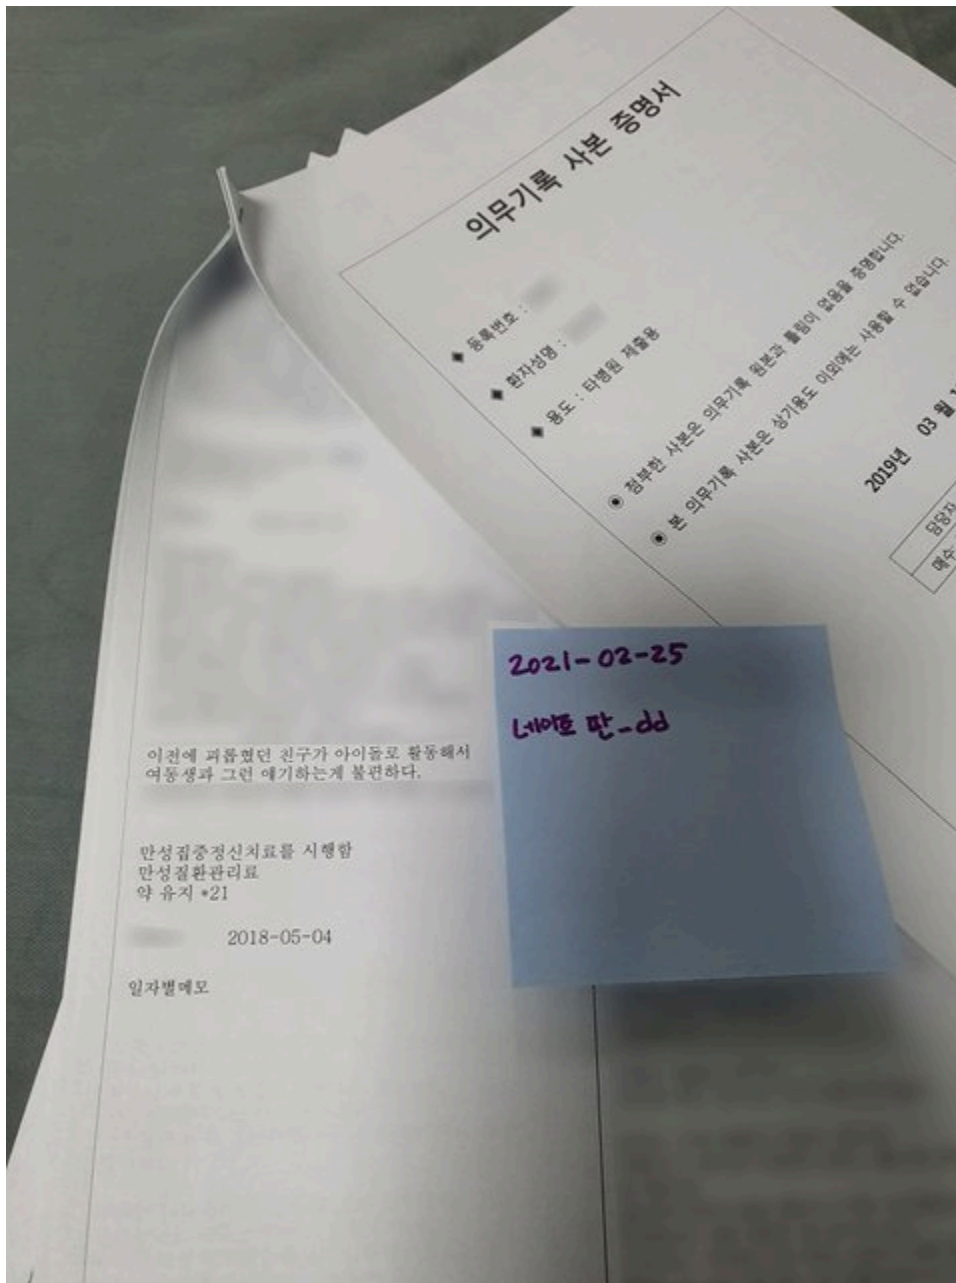

I thought that if I left the neighborhood I wouldn't hear anything about him anymore and when I actually moved, I didn't hear anything about him again.

When I became an adult and joined SNS, I became extremely shocked to come across his photo.

When I see his photos, I can still clearly remember what he said, with what expression, and tone, but seeing that person receiving love from others I was overwhelmed with many thoughts.

So, why would i write this post..

Originally I had no desire or thought to write this. I thought that my experience was not as harsh as the other people who had shared their stories, especially because there was no violence or physical contact. I thought I could just hold it in, so I just briefly mentioned it to my psychiatrist.

Also... since I am struggling with depression and anxiety, I thought I would have to face someone else if i write something like this... and I'm scared of that. I know that in comparison to what I experienced the stuff I will experience if I say something will be bigger(worse) so I just tried to move on and that he was just a bad person to me. But, recently the therapist that I've been seeing told me that even these types of experiences can become a big hurt to people... and I began to see posts defending him (+ there's also the fact that I kept being reminded of the horrible experiences I had...) I also thought I should let people know that something like this happened.

I don't know how to end this post. I don't even want an apology, I just want people to know that something like this happened. That he was a person to do this to another person.

- *Also called an hagwon
- **Alone meaning didn't have many friends
- ***Subj assumed

Picture of medical record provided by op
That kind of thing meaning relating to idols
Harassed is a harsher word, but synonyms would be "teased or picked on"
Friend meaning classmate or person in the same grade. NOT actually friend as in they were close

