

BROTHERHOOD PACT

between Chiraq and Skandic

Preamble

Chiraq and Skandic, together "the Parties," bound by friendship and a shared interest in security and prosperity, enter into this Brotherhood Pact. Each Party remains a sovereign nation and joins this union freely, on the terms set out below.

Article I: Sovereignty

Each Party keeps full custody and authority over its own territory, citizens and internal affairs.

Each Party keeps the right to conduct its own foreign diplomacy, subject to the limits in Articles II and III.

Article II: Mutual Defense

An armed attack on either Party shall be treated as an attack on both, and each Party shall come to the other's defense with all reasonable means.

This obligation applies only to defensive wars. Neither Party is bound to support the other in a war the other has started or provoked.

Neither Party shall be required to take up arms against a nation with which it holds a non-aggression pact. In such a case, that Party shall still provide all non-military support it reasonably can.

Article III: Military Alliances and Treaties

The Parties shall enter into military alliances only together, as one. Neither Party shall enter into a military alliance with a foreign nation separately.

Any military alliance shall require the written agreement of both Parties, and shall bind both Parties equally.

Neither Party shall sign a treaty that conflicts with this Pact, or that commits the other Party to any obligation without its consent.

Each Party shall inform the other before entering any treaty with a foreign nation.

Article IV: Shared Infrastructure

Each Party shall grant the citizens of the other access to its public infrastructure, including rails, roads and ice roads, as well as the use of its factories.

Each Party keeps ownership of everything it builds, and may restrict access to vaults, military sites, private builds and any area it considers sensitive.

Abuse of shared access, including theft, grieving or espionage, shall be treated as a breach of this Pact.

Article V: Shared XP Production

The Parties shall cooperate in the development and use of experience-production technology for the mutual advancement and prosperity of both States. Chiraq, primarily through its Engineering Department, shall lead efforts in developing such technology and shall share knowledge, designs, and methods with the other Party in the spirit of cooperation, mutual support, and brotherhood.

Article VI: Representation and Joint Decisions

Each Party shall appoint a representative to act as its point of contact for matters under this Pact.

Decisions on joint military action shall be made by agreement of both Parties' governments.

Article VII: Resolution of Disputes

Any dispute arising under this Pact shall first be raised in private between the Parties' representatives.

The Parties shall seek a peaceful, diplomatic resolution before any other action is taken.

Article VIII: Amendment

This Pact may be amended only with the written agreement of both Parties' governments on the exact changes.

Article IX: Withdrawal

Either Party may withdraw from this Pact by giving official notice to the other.

Withdrawal takes effect seventy-two (72) hours after notice is given. Until then, all obligations under this Pact remain in force.

Upon withdrawal, each Party keeps the infrastructure it built and owns, including any experience-production facilities built using shared knowledge or designs.
